Mais Non, Mon Cheri—

Time was when Paris was a state of mind. . . .

"How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm . . . after they've seen Parre?"

"The last time I saw Paris her heart was warm and gay. . . . But not now. Mon Cheri. Mais non."

Now France is frightened . . . and NATO meets there and the shadow of Soviet blackmail casts one of those palls where once the mob cried "Liberte," pulled down palaces and beheaded kings and queens.

We are an ebullient people.

One day we scoff at suggestions man may fly to the moon.

The next day we want to buy tickets on the first flight.

The Russian spunk, a word which is beginning to wear thin with use, and which hereafter will be referred to as earth satellites, convinced us we were past the threshold of a push-button war.

We are not. Despite the two Soviet satellites and the Atlas we now have fired, we still are at least a year or so away from a war in which missiles would be the major weapons. There is yet a lot of life left in the Strategic Air Command, and the supersonic bomber is almost a missile.

President Handcuffed

The President went to NATO handcuffed by a Secretary Dulles statement there was no use to discuss things with the Russians because one couldn't trust them. They are not to be trusted, but nations have rarely had complete confidence in each other. Yet, they have managed to make treaties and agreements, some of which have lasted for a long time.

The President offered missiles to European nations to counter those the Russians have on an operational basis. This serves to keep the Russians off balance.

But confidential reports have it, neither he nor military staffs were eager to go into this with a rush. Despite the inability to say so, there obviously was not complete diplomatic disagreement with the contents of the recent Bulgarian note. He said it was now not at all possible to control, or contain, "local wars"—which we refer to as "brush wars."

The so-called "inside" analysis is this:

While both Russia and the United States, being well stocked with nuclear weapons and able to deliver some of any quantity launched by air or missile, know the cost of such war—there are others which might not be so restrained.

The Bulgarian statement privately made a lot of sense to some of our diplomats and military people.

Smaller Nations

If a number of smaller nations, with unstable governments, are in possession of nuclear weapons, they might find themselves in such a predicament that they would push the button as a last resort. They would be willing to bring the whole world to flames if, thereby, they might have a chance of extricating themselves from some otherwise impossible position. Nuclear weapons are not for the trigger-happy—or for those who might be. So, the NATO victory scored yesterday is a great one in that we will control the bases to be granted.

Much of Europe is believed "zeroed" in by Soviet missiles. And certainly the Red air force is in great strength just beyond the borders of Europe.

The Russians know that we have, even as the President said, a mighty striking force. It likely is greater than that of the Soviets, though we cannot be positive. But neither can they.

They cannot be sure. And so they suggest talks. All this gives us time. The successful firing of the Atlas will further deter the Russians in belligerency.

The Russian suggestions for peace talks were propaganda. They were made to do all possible harm to the NATO session. And in considerable measure, they succeeded.

But what made them effective propaganda was the fact there exists a great international will to try every possible opening which has even remote possibilities of avoiding war.

The NATO decision to explore approaches to such talks makes the session one of real value. On the face of things the results are small. But in fact, there was more success than we had any right to expect from so brief a meeting.

CURIOSITY AT FIRST GLIMPSE OF SANTA—VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 18. All the wondrous delight of Christmas fills the face of Elizabeth Preston, 2½, as she meets jolly St. Nick for the first time. The happy meeting occurred at a Christmas party given by soldiers for children of a Canadian army regiment.

Tranquil Economic '58 Seen

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Constitution Business Editor

Georgia's economy isn't likely to set any new records or encounter any severe jolts in 1958. That's the opinion of a majority of business leaders just surveyed by the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, which sent out questionnaires to 100 "representative" executives and received 54 replies.

Exuberance was as rare as unqualified pessimism.

SPOTTY SITUATION

Exactly half of those who replied, 27, felt generally like the Milledgeville executive who predicted that 1958 business conditions in Georgia "as a whole will be about the same as in 1957, although spotty as to sections."

Of the remainder, those anticipating a decline outnumbered by two-to-one those who forecast an improvement.

Views of the nine (17 per cent) who were most optimistic were well summed up by Brunswick banker I. M. Aiken, who pointed out:

LESS PESSIMISTIC

"We have an exceptionally well-balanced economy here. I expect continued growth on a sound basis, however, there might not be as much expansion in 1958 as we have enjoyed in the past few years."

Most of the one-third (18) at the other extreme were less pessimistic.

Integrated Negroes Praised for Courage

By JACK NELSON

Constitution Staff Writer

MONTEAGLE, Tenn., Dec. 18—Negro students who have cracked the racial barrier in Southern white schools are glorified by Highlander Folk School and urged to extend integration to social events.

At a recent Highlander session, Negroes from three integrated schools were told that they were courageous, that they were writing history and that the whole world was watching them.

The students, representing schools at Clinton, Tenn., Greensboro and Winston-Salem, N.C., were encouraged to mix with white students at dances and other school socials.

Jet Kills Pedestrian, Pilot at Turner AFB

Constitution State News Service

ALBANY, Dec. 18—A panic-stricken couple ran into the path of the skidding wreckage of a supersonic jet at Turner Air Force Base near here Wednesday afternoon.

The pilot was killed. Also fatally injured was an Air Force sergeant who ran from his parked car into the path of the flaming plane. His wife was critically injured.

The dead were identified as the pilot, 1st Lt. Donald F. Egen, 25, who is survived by his wife and two children who live in Brooklyn, N.Y., and M-Sgt. Lemuel A. Mitchell, 46, of Baltimore, Md.

Mitchell's wife, Frances, is reported in critical condition.

SPECTACULAR CRASH
The spectacular crash occurred as the plane, a sweeping F100-D, was taking off on a routine training mission.

Two persons narrowly escaped death. They were a boy, son of the couple struck by the plane, and a utility pole repairman who scrambled down from a pole moments before it was hit by the aircraft.

LT. Thompson said the boy was in the car with his parents when they saw the wreckage skidding toward the street where their car was parked. They jumped from the car and ran.

LUCKY BOY

"The boy was lucky," Thompson said. "He ran in one direction and wasn't hurt at all. His parents ran in the opposite direction, but were hit by the wreckage."

Part of the plane also struck the car and demolished it. Two other parked cars were destroyed.

An unidentified power line repairman was climbing a pole when he heard the crash and saw the plane veer in his direction. He scrambled down the pole and ran. The pole was sheared off.

The bulk of the wreckage stopped at the telephone pole which is 10 feet from a base hospital building. The building was undamaged.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Dec. 18

(P)—Tornadoes took a vicious swipe at a number of Illinois and Missouri towns today, killing at least six persons and injuring more than 100 others.

An accurate count of the injured could not be made immediately, but 80 persons were hurt—some critically—in Mount Vernon and Murphysboro, two southern Illinois communities.

Numerous other communities also reported injuries. Damage to property was immense.

WIRES DOWN

Communications in the area—eastern Missouri and southern Illinois—were disrupted.

State police reported four fatalities at Murphysboro, one near Du Quoin, Ill., and one near Farmington, Mo.

Damage was heaviest at Mount Vernon. Officials estimated 75 to 100 homes were destroyed or badly damaged.

HARASSED BY FIRES

Officials at Murphysboro, a town of 9,250 population, said in radio reports to neighboring villages that at least 40 persons were hurt there.

Fires became a big problem in the wake of the storm at Murphysboro. Power lines toppled by the twister set off blazes that raged in dwellings for several blocks along the big Muddy River.

A mother and three of her children were plucked out of their home and tossed into a nearby field. The mother—identified only as a Mrs. Butcher— and two daughters, aged 3 and 12, were killed. A boy, 6, was in critical condition.

DIES IN DEBRIS
In addition, a 12-year-old girl, Bonny Joyce Johnson, Negro, died in the wreckage of a Murphysboro home.

Killed at a community called Sunfield, about three miles north of Du Quoin, was James Carter, about 70. A 7-month-old boy, Robert Shannon, was fatally injured in a twister which struck a rural area near Farmington, Mo.

Officials reported 30 houses were destroyed in Murphysboro—15 by fires which followed the tornado.

Feb. 3 Is Set For New Trial Of 'Mrs. Gray'

The case of Mrs. Margaret L. Burton will come to trial again in DeKalb Superior Court on Feb. 3, Judge Frank Guess said Wednesday.

The first attempt to try "Mrs. Gray" ended in a mistrial Monday after a juror heard an opinion on the case expressed in church.

Mrs. Burton will be tried in a special term of court on a charge she converted $186,757 to her own use while she was business manager at a Decatur doctors' clinic.

Christmas Comes to Snout Island

Tuck Could Let School Women Drift Out to Sea, but Remembers

CHAPTER 5

Tuck Stanton stood back of a clump of myrtle bushes and looked fearfully at the boat that had come sneaking in the back way, through Clabber Creek instead of around by the river, to take him away from Gramp and Snout Island.

The shovel and the bucket he had brought to get the cedar Christmas tree lay on the ground forgotten. Christmas, the day Gramp had joyfully brought forth to celebrate after having forgotten it for so many years, was nothing now. The women had come to spoil it.

Tuck didn't know why the women would separate him from

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Gramp or how they had the right but he knew that Gramp feared them. Otherwise Gramp wouldn't have started all that business about schooling this morning.

Gramp hadn't thought that 76 years was old and he might die. The women had thought of that and set a worry to aching in Gramp—a worry that only Christmas had eased.

Now they were back.

"Plague take you!" whispered Tuck fiercely from his hiding place back of the bush. "Plague take you ever" last ones!

The boat, Tuck realized after a moment, was quiet. The motor was still. In fact, except for moving slightly with the current the boat itself was still.

Tuck eased over a little closer and peered curiously at the little craft. The women were on it, all right. But they were alone—no menfolk with them today. But what were they doing?

Cautiously Tuck slid down the bank toward the marsh. And then he saw.

The silly women had come in the wrong way and tangled the boat's propeller in the slick creek grass!

The older woman poked futilely at the marsh with a fishing pole.

New Strategy Adopted on Disarming

By ROBERT C. DOTY

(Copyright 1957, The New York Times Co.)

PARIS, Dec. 18—The Atlantic Alliance tonight reached limited accords in principle on the arming of Europe with nuclear missiles and a new approach to the Soviet Union on disarmament.

This formula of "arm and negotiate" reconciled the United States' preoccupation with military strengthening of the alliance and the European desire that the West should show concurrently its willingness to seek peace.

Doubt expressed that Bonn will accept nuclear weapons.

Neither agreement involved any formal commitment by all of the 15 allied nations. Both, tonight, still were subject to widely varying interpretations.

MAJOR OBJECTIVE

The consensus was that the United States had obtained its major objective—agreement that missiles in Europe were necessary to its defense—at the price of modifying its opposition to a medium-soft answer to the Russians on disarmament.

The United States needs missile bases in Europe to reach potential targets with intermediate range ballistic weapons now on the verge of production. European governments need a conciliatory gesture toward Russia to counter the powerful propaganda appeal of Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin's proposal to bar nuclear weapons from central Europe.

The agreements hammered out in two meetings of the foreign ministers and one of the heads of government today gave public satisfaction to both aspirations and left the details for later discussion.

It was clear, however, that there was considerable resistance to the acceptance of nuclear missiles by some continental countries—namely West Germany, Norway and Denmark. The formula adopted for inclusion in the communiqué tomorrow left room for them to refuse.

DIFFERING VIEWS

Similarly, British, French and U.S. sources all gave differing interpretations of the procedure envisaged for sounding out the Soviets on resumption of disarmament talks. The first two tended to emphasize the NATO sanction for the new approach—representing the first time the

Ike and Dulles Plan National Report on Paris

(Copyright 1957, The New York Times Co.)

PARIS, Dec. 18—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles will make a nationwide radio and television report next Monday on the results of the NATO summit meeting here. This meeting of chiefs of government is scheduled to end tomorrow.

The report will be given on all radio networks and the Columbia Television Network at 8:30 p.m. EST. Delayed telecasts will be made by the American Broadcasting Company at 11:30 p.m.

Press Secretary Hagerty said the President tentatively plans to leave Paris by airplane at about 6 p.m. tomorrow, arriving in Washington at about 6:30 a.m. Friday.

PARIS, Dec. 18 (P)—President Eisenhower had what the French could call a light official lunch today when he was guest of President Rene Coty at the Elysee Palace table.

The menu included grilled turbot with cream sauce, roast prime ribs of beef, mixed vegetables, mixed salad, assorted cheeses, ice cream with pineapple and whipped cream and tiny cookies.

Benson Will Reduce Dairy Stuffs Parity

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson announced today that government price supports for dairy products will be reduced to 75 per cent of parity—the lowest legal minimum—next April 1.

He said it should bring cuts of around 2½ cents a pound in the retail prices of butter and cheese and ½ cent a quart for fluid milk. Dairy state senators attacked the move immediately as a shocking injustice which would be disastrous to dairy farmers.

INTRODUCE BILLS

Both Sens. Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Thye (R-Minn.) announced they would introduce bills at the next session of Congress to keep the price supports at their present levels or even raise them. The present supports are 80 per cent of parity for butterfat and 83 per cent for milk used for manufacturing purposes.

Benson argued that cuts would be in the best interests of the dairy industry in the long run.

He suggested dairymen could help adjust themselves to lower supports by using greater care in culling low-producing cows which, he said, do little more than provide their owners with companionship.

PRICE SUPPORT

Benson's action on the politically explosive price support issue came just ahead of a congressional session likely to be marked by a bitter fight over farm legislation.

Reductions in dairy supports, Benson said, do not necessarily forecast reductions for other basic farm commodities.

Benson told a news conference the April 1 support prices will be pegged at 75 per cent of parity for both butterfat and milk used for manufacturing purposes.

Bonn May Shun Aid Of Nuclear Weapons

By M. S. HANDLER

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

PARIS, Dec. 18—There was a substantial doubt that the West German Bundeswehr would be equipped with American-supplied intermediate range missiles and nuclear warheads despite the consent given by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to the principle that these weapons should be stationed in the territories defended by the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance.

Adenauer accepted the principle as a political necessity but the explanation furnished by Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss and Felix von Eckhardt, the delegation's spokesman, made it clear that as far as West Germany is concerned it was highly improbable that the American weapons would be accepted.

Strauss represented the federal government at this morning's meeting where the compromise formula was framed. The spokesman said the defense minister had not signified his government's willingness to accept the weapons nor had he refused them outright. The position was theoretically left open.

Von Eckhardt reaffirmed tonight after the compromise was in that acceptance of missiles and warheads for the Bundeswehr was primarily a political question that would have to be decided by the West German parliament.

The military experts of NATO would first have to recommend where the weapons would best be stationed, but a final NATO decision would not be forthcoming until the next NATO meeting in May.

Strauss explained to German reporters the military considerations that militated against the stationing of missiles and warheads in those sectors of the federal republic that are to be defended by the Bundeswehr.

TACTICAL STRATEGY

He asserted that the task of the Bundeswehr in the framework of NATO's strategy was fundamentally tactical. Such a task would, therefore, require tactical rather than such strategic weapons as the intermediate missiles and the nuclear warheads.

Another important consideration, the defense minister explained was the impracticality of stationing the "heavy artillery," in this case missiles and warheads, in the front lines. West Germany was a forward position in the NATO defense system against the Communist armies. It would, therefore, be pointless to risk such weapons being overrun in a massive land attack.

Passports Voided for China Visit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The State Department today canceled the passports of 24 young Americans who traveled to Red China in defiance of a department ban and still remain abroad.

Originally, 42 went to China last summer at the invitation of the Red regime after attending a youth festival in Moscow.

The 42 were given 60 days to appeal a tentative lifting of their passports. This period of grace expired in the last of the cases today.

Atlas Assisted Ike But Victory's His!

At Cape Canaveral the huge rocket seemed to hesitate, shuddering briefly as if shaking off some invisible weight, before it rose, golden and graceful against the sky, into which it climbed, arching out of sight.

The Atlas was a success.

In Paris, hours later, the NATO allies, who also had been hesitating, accepted in principle the U.S. offer to base nuclear missiles in Europe. Had the ICBM Atlas failed, this proposal also would have ended in failure.

There will be no general, nation-by-nation placement. Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO commander, will determine where such bases are needed.

In this limited, though positive sense, the United States attained its chief objective.

But this was not without price.

Government, negotiations, progress—all these are made possible by compromise.

The United States agreed to the European demand that negotiations with the Russians be considered. This was strongly opposed by much political thought in the United States but is a decision which will be approved by most of the people.

This could lead to another high-level East-West conference—such as the one at Geneva. Switzerland already stands ready to issue the invitation. The former "summit" meeting at Geneva left a bad hangover in American diplomatic circles. Great concessions were made to the Russians. They made few and did not keep all of them. Worst of all, they quickly abandoned the cooperative spirit of Geneva and renewed the structures of cold war.

This meeting of NATO must be marked up as a triumph for President Eisenhower. He quite obviously put away considerations of health and gave all that he could in participation and leadership. He scored the expected personal triumph. But let none fail to note that without him NATO would have fallen apart. The Russians would have scored a tremendous psychological and political victory. The security of the United States would have been even more seriously threatened.

Let all those who were feeling sorry for "poor old Ike" and those who were so glibly reporting that he had lost his prestige and popularity, not fail to note how at Paris he was the one indispensable man to freedom.

He had a good timely assist from the rocket Atlas.

But Ike did the job. It was a great show by a great person.

Let's Allow This Cup To Pass from Cravey

Zack Cravey—comptroller general, insurance commissioner, fire safety commissioner, small loan commissioner and floater of trial balloons aimed toward his possible candidacy for governor—seemingly would have his hands full.

But not so.

The title-laden Mr. Cravey wants to branch out some more and assume control over natural gas installations and licensing of nursing homes.

It is true that the latter two fields need closer supervision and tighter regulations. But surely the Legislature can accomplish those objectives without burdening Mr. Cravey with more responsibilities and commissions.

It's another cup which Mr. Cravey should not be asked to bear.

Are SAC Pilots Given Gasoline Credit Cards?

Gen. Curtis LeMay's disclosure that planes of the Strategic Air Command were grounded for five weeks last summer due to lack of money for gasoline reveals a penny-pinching blunder of king-sized proportions.

The Associated Press reported the point, dug out by Sen. Symington at a session of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, was not pursued "but it is assumed that SAC could have become airborne in the event of an emergency."

Maybe SAC had some precious gasoline stored away for use in a crisis. Or perhaps the government had thoughtfully provided pilots with credit cards so they could wheedle some fuel from friendly operators of gasoline pumps.

This lack of provision for the basic needs of the nation's principal striking force deserves top ranking on the list of bungled affairs.

Thanks to the Sputnik scare and to the fact the financial pinch that arises toward the end of the fiscal year is several months away, SAC now has gasoline, will fly, and is doing so.

And the government had better keep those mighty warriors in the air—even if it means siphoning off a bit of the fuel customarily provided for other branches to haul congressmen and other VIP's around and about from Pole to Pole.

The Police Viewpoint Should Be Respected

A petition spontaneously begun, with no officers present and no private investigation of it, has been signed by the great majority of Atlanta police. It asks that they not, as is suggested, be placed under the supervision of the city personnel board but that they be allowed supervision by professionals in their work.

The Atlanta Police Department has its own civil service. It is an efficient force.

In every city a police department and its chief are made a part of politics. That is an inescapable fact of political life. It will always be so no matter what sort of civil service system is employed. This is true because political opponents of the various city administrations deliberately inject the police departments into politics.

There are always persons who don't like police departments. Rare is the man who has had a traffic ticket who believes the officer was right. The arrested bootlegger, lottery operator, drunk drivers and others who have felt the weight of the law, make up a permanent enemy of the police department and a readily marshaled political opposition.

There goes on a continual nagging at the Atlanta administration. This to be sure, is a part of any city's experience.

There are always those who want more power. There seems to be some of this wish in the present nagging to abolish the civil service system which has served the police system well and which its men want to keep.

We'd much prefer to have the chief and his staff select police officers than to have it done by a personnel board using psychological tests. We'd much prefer a professionally selected and trained officer guarding the city and its property than one picked by a bureaucratic board.

Carl Sutherland has enough to do guiding other city departments. We suggest he let policemen run the police department.

Allocating Fuel Taxes Means Shaky Finances

The governor's reminder to school officials they may do themselves more harm than good through seeking a new appropriations bill to pay for additional school buildings points up again a rather shaky situation in state finances.

If a new appropriations bill were passed, the State Constitution requires that all motor vehicle and gasoline tax receipts will be allocated to the highway department. The last appropriations bill was passed in 1956 and gas allocations are on a basis of collections for that year.

Since that time, receipts from motor vehicles and gasoline have increased by some 20 million dollars—a sum which has been channeled into other services such as schools and which they could ill afford to lose.

In the present instance, it would seem the wiser course to retain the old appropriations bill unless the Legislature wants to raise additional taxes for schools. The most obvious and most sensible course is to give the voters an opportunity to repeal the motor vehicle and fuel tax amendment. This would make it possible for the General Assembly again to exercise its proper function over appropriations and to limit highway spending to the necessary level.

The amendment cannot be repealed until the 1958 general election. Until then, the alternative to more taxes for schools is to operate under the old appropriations bill.

When Opening Occurs, The 'Bug' Will Slip In

It's possible lottery is called the "bug" because it is ubiquitous. Like the odious insect that infests beds, the lottery operation gets around.

Thomaston policemen recently arrested a Negro from LaGrange on the suspicion of lottery operation. They found in his possession numbers tickets and cash to indicate that he might be taking $30,000 a year out of Upson County.

The officers said this was not the only operator working in Thomaston.

The arrest there points up the fact that lottery is not strictly "big city."

The "bug" goes where there are people and money.

Good housekeeping is the best preventive.

Evidently, Thomaston police keep the insecticide handy. Their action is exemplary.

Athenian Contends Higher College Tuition Actually Will Aggravate Ills of Education

Athens—I definitely agree with the editorial of a few days ago about finding some way to educate the young people who want an education but lack the funds to go to college.

How in the world are the majority of these fine young people (who can barely make ends meet now) going to be able to go to college next fall with the proposed increase in tuition? It's almost an impossibility with a great many students. Surely there must be an answer somewhere.

Many of the students going to college at the present time (I don't say all of them) who have wealthy parents, go just for the social participation.

Why can't the young men and women who dearly want an education above all else have a chance? My heart goes out to these students and at the same time this country is losing so many would-be scientists and engineers just because they can't afford the price of an education. Many of the young men get discouraged and look for work or join the service.

Joining any part of the service is fine, but Uncle Sam still has to foot the bill for their education while in the service, so why not find some way while they are still in school?

The answer is not higher tuition although it may seem the right thing to do. Let's get on the ball and find the answer before it is too late.

Mr. Smith vs. Herr Berger; A Study in Certain Habits

My American friends keep on asking me what, if any, is the basic difference between Americans and Europeans. That is a tough question, because it is rather difficult to tell the difference between two things when you know only one of them.

Of course, I had tried to answer the question for myself previously and on the basis of what I had seen in the past few weeks I had come to the conclusion that: (a) One American is a businessman; (b) two Americans are a trust; and (c) three Americans are five associations. By contrast, one European would be a displaced person, two a refugee camp and three would be somewhere between four and seven political parties.

However, the other day I met an electrical engineer—call him Mr. Smith—who has no business firm of his own and is not a member of the League for the Protection of Fur Bearers. So as my original definition seemed to be too general, I jettisoned it and asked my new friend if he would permit me to study his habits closely in order to find a basic difference between himself and his counterpart—Herr Berger—in Vienna, Austria. He kindly gave his consent and here is the result of my survey.

Mr. Smith, of course, drives a car, but he is perfectly willing and even anxious to sell it as soon as he has become its owner—in other words, two or three years after the first down payment. Herr Berger, on the other hand, develops a deep affection for the vehicle once it is his—which may take as long as over a year or longer—and he will drive it until the engine dies of whooping cough.

Mr. Smith works very hard (he used the expression "like hell") but I am not quite sure if this is fit to print for five days a week in order to have two full days of leisure time during which he works even harder, repairing gadgets and appliances, overhauling his wife's car and mending the fence. Herr Berger spends the weekend in sweet loafing.

As to conversation, the continental European is ready to discuss any subject under the sun—I say "continental" to draw a line between Western Europe and England where there is no sun—while Mr. Smith sticks to certain topics. However, he complains about taxes and the horrible difference between his income and his wife's tailor bills. And this is one of the points where there is no difference at all between Mr. Smith and Herr Berger.

most thorough investigation and surely the findings of these 500 eminent medical and dental investigators should be heard and then let the people decide instead of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

HELEN B. STEWART.

Editor's Note: The American Dental Assn. and the American Medical Assn. represent far more than 500 "eminent dentists and doctors." Each organization has studied fluoridation and endorsed it as safe and effective in slowing down tooth decay.

Hot Air Makes A Poor Fuel

Of All Things: Guess whose will they be trying to break now? Benjamin Franklin! The trustees of the Franklin Foundation want to change the terms of a bequest.

Ben made to the City of Boston in 1790. As Poor Richard would say, a penny saved is a penny for posterity to fight over. And this would be a good day for him to say it. Franklin began the publication of Poor Richard's Almanac 225 years ago today. . . . The Animal Insurance Co. has paid its first death claim, $200 for a German shepherd killed in N.Y. by a hit-and-run driver. I wonder if canine coverage carries a clause on space travel. . . . The Navy's press kit on the U.S. earth satellite weighs nearly half as much as the satellite itself. But hot air has never raised anything except a balloon. . . . Uncle Kennesaw says, "I notice the Russians ain't sayin' much about their Sputnik these days. Guess they don't want to run the thing in the ground." . . . Atlantian Rob Roy Rhudy, savings and loan counsel, is a member of OX5, that club for doughty boys and girls who flew when planes were crates and the only thing jet-propelled was the farmer who ran out waving a pitchfork and yelling, "Get that grasshopper off my pasture 'fore you scare all my cows into a drought."

The Divine Word Offers Great Link

The Gospel of St. John does not have a nativity story but that does not mean that the fourth gospel is without a message for Christmas. Sometime during this season read the first chapter of St. John. Read it as a witness concerning the coming of Christ and it will add a wonderful new dimension to your understanding of the incarnation.

To my way of thinking this chapter is one of the most meaningful and expressive portions of the New Testament.

The chapter begins with this mighty assertion: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." Then in the 14th verse we find this testimony: "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

Words are important to our lives. Through words we express ourselves. Through words we interpret our minds. Through words we bridge the gap between personalities. Our words are our own. What I say is truly me. What you say reflects your heart and mind. Our words when exchanged become gateways by which I may enter your life and through which you share my life.

There must be portals by which man can enter into the life of God and God can make His will known to us. Is there no word from God? If there were none, how spiritually isolated we should be from the one sure source of spiritual nourishment.

St. John tells us that God has a word for us, a word we can hear and understand. God has spoken and no truth is of greater consequence in our lives. The word God speaks has divine authority. It is an eternal word. It is spoken in a language we can readily comprehend. It comes into our lives with healing and with light. His words binds our hearts in loving adoration to His great heart.

The word God speaks has become flesh and is in our midst. The greatest value any of us can ever know is always personality. That which means most is always people. What means more to a man than the woman with whom he shares the anxieties and joys of his life? What means more to a mother than her children?

The word of God is a personal word. It is the will and way of God clothed in the garments of the flesh. It is Jesus who, as God's own Son, has taken upon himself the weariness and the wonder of human life, who has walked the roads of our life, who has sat at our tables, who has given us His life that we may better know and appreciate life.

God speaks in diverse ways. His word is to be heard in the music of the spheres and in the mysteries and marvels of creation. But when God speaks most effectively, most persuasively and most endearingly, He speaks through the personality of His Son. And through His Son, whose birth we now celebrate, we behold as in no other fashion the glory of God.

Russia Has Failed To Intimidate U.N.

WASHINGTON—Although the Soviets may have taken over outer space—temporarily—they have not taken over the United Nations. Despite the Sputniks they have found themselves bowling a sticky wicket at the General Assembly for the past three months when they thought they would be able to point to their moon and say "Jump!" The U.N. has stood firm.

The Soviets have not been getting things their own way.

The Kremlin tried to keep the eyes and the mind of the U.N. off Hungary—and failed.

The Kremlin tried to whip up a war scare against Turkey—and failed.

The Kremlin tried to sell its no-disarmament plan to the U.N. and failed.

The record of the General Assembly is not at all anti-Soviet. It is a record of refusal to be taken in.

Around Washington these days the grim-faced question is asked every day: Do you know any good news? You are not supposed to say yes. Well, here is some good news.

On the Turkish-Syrian Issue: In part to keep things stirred up in the Middle East and in part to distract attention from Hungary, Moscow pulled out all the stops, charging that Turkey was massing its troops on the Syrian frontier for aggression. Gromyko pounded the table, declaring an attack was imminent and that the United States had put Turkey up to it.

He called for a U.N. investigating commission to go to Turkey to stop the war.

What is important is not what is done against the Soviet Union but what the free nations do in behalf of each other.

Organized Labor Accepts Its Duty

WASHINGTON—When you take a look at the AFL-CIO News, the weekly newspaper, and see it all in one piece in its recent convention issue at Atlantic City, with the pictures of the Teamsters and the Bakery Union expulsions and other bad news for organized labor—then it looks as if perhaps it's one of the worst years since big unions came of age.

You are certainly seeing it in blunt and almost brutal perspective—and the AFL-CIO was frank. The leadership is to be commended for giving itself and its membership the straight, true story.

In fact, the AFL-CIO News in its convention issue did a "slanted job"—and purposely. It actually gave a lopsided picture of the cruel truth about evil leadership in a few unions as compared to the tiny space devoted to the many unions and decent leaders and millions of rank and file members.

But the AFL-CIO was purging itself, publicly confessing, and it was good for its soul. For it was expiating itself for the myriad newspaper headlines about evil practices, chiefly in the Teamsters Union, exposed by the McClellan Committee. Eventually there were others, for the Atlantic City convention expelled not only the Bakers and Teamsters, but also the Laundry Workers Union, and put the Distillery Workers Union under probation pending a cleanup, and it is in the process of recommending the United Textile Workers to restore its good standing.

But there is no question at all that the AFL-CIO got a black eye and a jolt during the last several months. Frankly, it does no good for labor leadership to point out shady practices in business, for it is labor that is on trial and more always is expected of labor. In even less than a quarter of a century, we saw organized labor in the craft stage of the old AFL and organized on a spotty basis. Then suddenly, virtually overnight, with mass production we saw big mass unions suddenly blooming out.

Many things happened very quickly. The original CIO established big mass unions in giant industry, in steel, automobiles and the like.

There came, in the CIO, industry-wide bargaining. Big industry, big unions and big government were in a new pattern, a revolutionary development that we have not yet come to grasp.

In less than a quarter of a century it all has happened.

Soon enough there were persons who found opportunities in great labor unions to exploit power and money and with that came corruption. You know them and have seen their greed blazoned these last months in the newspapers.

The leaders at Atlantic City have recognized their grave responsibility—and have spoken the truth, the only way to make amends.

Third Term For Heibel At Doraville

Doraville Mayor Ed Heibel was elected to his third term Tuesday and two councilmen were elected as 627 voters cast ballots in city elections.

Heibel, with 362 votes, defeated Fred E. Kreiss, a former councilman, who got 260 votes. Heibel is a salesman and Kreiss is a purchasing agent.

Mrs. Kenneth Davis won a third seat on the city council with 335 votes, compared with the 269 votes received by John W. Wilkins, her opponent. Mrs. Davis is an insurance counselor, Wilkins an insurance company agent.

John Hamilton, a real estate man, received 350 votes to defeat Roger Chandler, with 269, a civil service employee of the Conley Supply Depot.

Heibel said he is "indeed happy to see that Doraville citizens have again come forward to stress their desire for clean and proper government," and thanked those who had worked for and supported him.

He said the Doraville planning board will hold a public hearing early in December. The Parks Commission will also hold a hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 30, at the Civic Building. Planning of the proposed Doraville park No. 3 will be discussed, Heibel said.

The new officers will take office Jan. 1.

Atlantan Seized On Charge of Firing at Son, 8

An Atlantan sought on charges of firing a shotgun at his 8-year-old son was arrested Wednesday, police said.

Claude Appling, 49, of a Tower Hill road, NW, address was booked on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct - disturbance and discharging firearms in the city, patrolmen A. W. Jones and J. M. Webb said.

Hearing on the charge was scheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in Municipal Court.

Appling, fled after the incident Tuesday, police said. Jones and Webb said they found him asleep at home Wednesday.

Appling, unemployed, insisted that he did not fire the shotgun at the boy, officers related. They said he told them he fired at a dog in the front yard. Officers said pellets from the gun peppered a passing automobile.

At first Appling was believed to be barricaded in the home. Later, officers said, it developed he left through the back door after finding that police had been called.

Town of Mountain View Seeks 'De-Incorporation'

The little Clayton County town of Mountain View, with less than two years' history as a city, will ask the General Assembly for a referendum to close shop and give up its charter.

Sen. Al Foster and Rep. Edgar Blalock said Wednesday they and Rep. Bill Lee will introduce a bill calling for a referendum on "de-incorporation" of the town of about 400 persons on the basis of a petition by the Committee to return Mountain View to the county.

The town, consisting of about four land lots adjacent to the Fulton County boundary, was incorporated in March, 1956, by a referendum approved in the leg-

Chatham Study On Cancer To Hear Ochsner

Constitution State News Service SAVANNAH, Dec. 18—Dr. Alton Ochsner, a leading exponent of the belief that cigarette smoking is a direct cause of lung cancer, will be one of the speakers here Thursday at a symposium on cancer.

Other speakers on the three-state symposium will be Dr. Henry D. Diamond, discussing malignant tumors in the lymph system; Dr. F. John Lewis, discussing cancer of the stomach; Dr. Orvar Swenson, speaking on malignant tumors in children, and Dr. William H. Mortez, who will talk on cancer of the colon.

Some 4,000 physicians from Georgia, Florida and South Carolina are expected to attend the symposium. It is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Friedman Auditorium of the Jewish Community Center in Savannah.

Lab Report Is Expected Today in Cain Slaying

By KEELER McCARTNEY

Final laboratory results expected Thursday probably will determine whether an Atlanta automobile assembly plant employee will face charges in the bludgeoning slaying of his estranged wife, police said.

Stains found in the trunk of a car owned by Ernest W. Cain, 33, of 1781 Pryor Rd., SW, have been established as human blood, Sgt. J. E. Helms said. He added tests are being conducted at the state crime laboratory to determine if the blood matches that of Mrs. Frances Williams Cain, 37, whose body was found near Duluth.

IN BRUSH PILE

Other items were found in the auto trunk, Helms related, and tests are being run to determine if these can be linked to the woman, whose decomposed body was found under a brush pile in Gwinnett County.

Cain, meanwhile, has denied any early knowledge of his wife's death. Helms, GBI Agent Lewis Hightower and Gwinnett County Sheriff Crawford Pittard said. He was held at city jail for suspicion of assault and battery.

However, officers said in questioning Cain he had admitted seeing his estranged wife in a restaurant on Williams street, NW, on Oct. 11. They said at first he insisted that he had not seen her since July.

DISABLED VETERAN
Cain, a disabled veteran, was quoted that he met Mrs. Frances Williams in January, 1954, at Spokane, Wash., and had lived with her off and on as common law man and wife. However, he said that he was not legally married to her, officers related. "We have contacted at least three people whom she told that they were legally married and that she could prove it," Helms said. He added investigators have not had time to clarify the point.

Officers said they also contacted a person at 72 W. Peachtree Pl., NW, Mrs. Cain's last address, who told them Mrs. Cain stopped her last September and said, "Ernie and I are going back together—we are going to Florida to live."

Cain was married to a divorcee, the mother of three children, in November, officers said they were told. They said the former husband of the divorcee told them Mrs. Frances Williams Cain was to have appeared as his witness at a custody hearing involving one of the children on Oct. 17.

CASE CONTINUED

The witness did not appear, officers said, and the case was continued until Nov. 5. By that time Mrs. Frances Williams Cain had vanished. Officers said they were told the mother was granted custody of the child.

Officers said they were told the present Mrs. Cain was granted her divorce Nov. 19.

One of the problems involved in the case is establishing the county in which death occurred. Officers said if the exact death scene cannot be established, venue will go to Gwinnett County, where the body was found.

Women Complain Of Phone Survey

An anonymous caller described by the secretary of Fulton County Medical Society as "mentally deranged" is asking Atlanta women intimate questions in a phony survey.

Dr. Thomas J. Anderson Jr., the society's secretary, reported an unknown man claiming to be a representative of the organization has been telephoning women and posing objectionable questions.

"The Fulton County Medical Society has never conducted a telephone survey and has no plans to ever do so," Dr. Anderson said.

Mother's Trial In Drowning of Infant Put Off

Trial of a 21-year-old West End mother on charges she murdered her infant daughter by drowning her in a bathtub was postponed Wednesday until January.

Asst. Sol. Gen. Carter Goode and the defense attorneys for Mrs. Barbara S. Longshore of 516 Lee St., SW, said the trial was put off to allow the defense to summon medical witnesses to give testimony about the mother's sanity.

The woman had been scheduled to be tried Wednesday morning in Fulton Superior Court before Judge J. C. Tanksley.

An indictment returned by the Fulton Grand Jury charges that Mrs. Longshore murdered Jan Marie Longshore Nov. 5 by drowning her in a tub filled with water.

Negroes Are Praised for Cracking The South's Integration Barriers

Sturgis students had to leave early.

Negroes from Little Rock's Central High also were scheduled to attend the three-day workshop, but had to stay home over the holiday weekend to receive extra tutoring so they could keep up with their studies, Mrs. Clark said.

On the grounds that they were from Georgia, the reporter and the photographer were barred from a Nov. 29 morning session of the workshop.

Myles Horton, director of Highlander, said "Georgia is on the black list" because of the Georgia Education Commission's published report branding Highlander a "Communist training school stirring up racial strife in the South."

"We've never had anything as low-level as Gov. Griffin's smear happen to us before," Horton said. He added that he didn't think he could trust anyone from Georgia except people he already knew and trusted.

"It looks like we're going to have to close Highlander to everybody from Georgia we don't know," Horton said. "I guess nobody from the Soviet Union or Georgia should be allowed to attend."

"You know you could be up here representing the Georgia White Citizens Council."

Horton claimed that until the Nov. 29 visit by the Atlanta newspapermen, all Highlander sessions from the first one in 1932 had been open to the press.

He said the Nov. 29 session was open to newsmen from other states. However, there were no other newsmen present and Horton acknowledged the workshop had not been publicized. On an earlier visit to Highlander, the Atlanta reporter learned the workshop was scheduled.

After the morning session was over, Horton and Mrs. Clark invited the newsmen to a night session on Nov. 29. And they agreed to allow the newsmen to attend the "workshop evaluation" session of Nov. 30.

"A BRAVE THING"

At the night session, Dr. Robert A. Dagan, young professor of economics at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., told the Negro students that he represented a "large number of people in the South who believe you have done a brave and necessary thing."

At the following day's session climaxing the workshop, Mrs. Clark continued the program of praise. Here are excerpts from her remarks to the students:

"Millions of white and Negroes admire you . . . the whole world is watching . . . you are making history . . . you are helping build the United States of tomorrow."

"NEED FOR INTEGRATION"

Emphasized at the workshop was what Horton earlier had called "motivation for integration." He said Highlander impresses upon Negroes the "need for integrating." Segregationists probably would use the modern term, "brainwashing," to describe this. A softer term would be indoctrination.

The students were told that integration was "the right thing in the eyes of man and in the eyes of God." They were told that because it is "right morally," it will come to pass if they work hard for it.

Mrs. Clark obviously was trying to impress the visiting reporter with the way the Negroes have been "accepted" at the integrated schools. And while there were some testimonials of acceptance, there also were some statements which indicated the Negroes are far from achieving social integration of the schools.

SENT FLOWERS

Mrs. Clark asked the students to relate some of the interesting experiences they had heard in the workshop.

A Chattanooga girl mentioned a Sturgis student's story of how white classmates sent flowers to the funeral of a Negro student's father. Mrs. Clark remarked that this was a "good sign of acceptance."

The Chattanooga girl also mentioned a Sturgis student's account of how Negro students went to a school dance but left because they weren't asked to dance. And she quoted one Sturgis girl as saying the Negroes had gone to a school social event "but only the chaperone was there, so they left before there was trouble."

Mrs. Clark advised the students that they should be aggressive in trying to tear away the racial curtain at social events.

DON'T BE TIMID

"Don't stand off; don't be timid," she instructed them. "You have to offer and if they refuse, don't worry, don't be embarrassed."

According to the other students, the Negro pupils at Sturgis say "things are going pretty well and they have some very good friends among the white students."

She also reported they are still subjected to "a few catcalls," which they said they ignore.

On catcalls, one of the smaller North Carolina Negro boys, who appeared to be about 12 years old, had this bit of advice: "Just smile at 'em and look 'em in the eye. They'll quit. They'll look foolish."

The same boy, the only Negro in his class, told of being elected class treasurer. When Mrs. Clark shot a quick glance at the reporter and remarked that this was another "good sign of acceptance," the boy replied:

"No, ma'am, they were just trying me out to see if I was honest."

Mrs. Clark recovered—temporarily, at least—with a comment that it sure was "nice" of the white boy to nominate him as class treasurer.

"No, ma'am," the boy said, "the boy who nominated me was one of the most radical ones. He was just joking and everybody started laughing. He didn't think I'd get any votes, but I got almost all of them."

The boy said he had made a good class treasurer and had made many friends among white students.

A Clinton High School student said he had had several arguments with white boys, but had not been involved in any fights. He said the white boys "and some of the white girls" still "act a little funny" around him. He didn't elaborate.

A Clinton girl declared that some Negro families consider the Negro pupils in the integration cases to be "outcasts."

"They say we're causing trouble," she said, "and say we think we are better than they and want to go to school with whites."

She said some of those Negroes didn't want the Clinton students to go to Highlander because it might cause more trouble.

A North Carolina boy said he was having no trouble at school and was making "some friends" among white students.

Asked if he attended the school's football games, the boy said, "The principal said I'd better not go to any games because there was no supervisor there to look after me."

The boy said that the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People furnishes tutors to help him keep his grades up.

Mrs. Clark emphasized to the students the importance of "passive resistance," and told them to refrain from violence.

Quoting the Rev. Martin Luther King, Negro minister who led Montgomery's bus boycott, Mrs. Clark said, "Don't bow to mob rule. Don't fight. Feel sorry for those who resort to violence."

She quoted another Negro preacher as saying, "We have to hit the white man in his pocket where it hurts. Then we can make him livable. We can live with him."

Frank Costello May Spend Yule In Federal Jail

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Rack-eteer Frank Costello may spend his Christmas in jail. He was ordered to surrender two days before Christmas to finish serving a five-year sentence.

Costello has served 11 months of the tax evasion sentence. He was convicted in 1954 of evading $28,532 in taxes for 1948 and 1949.

He has contended that the government illegally used state-obtained wiretap evidence at his trial and maintained an illegal watch on his mail causing a delay in delivery.

Judge John F. X. McGohery ruled last Monday that none of Costello's Constitutional Rights had been violated before or during the trial.

as if that might dislodge the grass beneath the boat! The younger woman, the one Tuck had liked, sat shivering, watching the fading light and wailing, "What will we do? Bess, it's getting dark! What will we do?"

I know what you can do, thought Tuck. You can stay here a little while with the tide beginning to run out like it is and then you can drift out to sea! It would be a good thing, he thought, if they drifted out to sea and were never seen again. It would serve them right.

Tuck's foot slipped and he caught himself on a clump of marsh grass, causing a movement which attracted the older woman's attention.

"Who's there?" she called. "There's something or somebody over there? Hello-o!"

She sounded so scared Tuck smiled to himself and then he felt sorry for her. He would set her mind at rest. He poked his head up over the waving brown grass.

"Oh, it's the child!" said the woman, relieved. "Little boy, little boy! Is your grandfather with you? Run get him. We need help!"

"Yes'm, I know it," said Tuck.

And he saw the boat was beginning to wheel from side to side, moving along toward the mouth of the river. The tide was running out. He wouldn't have time to run get Gramp. The boat would be gone, swept out of the creek and toward the open sea before he could get to the cabin and back.

"Ain't you got an anchor?" he called after the swaying craft.

"Oh, no!" cried the woman. "The anchor thing broke. It's why my husband didn't want us to come. But we decided to come anyhow. Oh, run, child, and get us help!"

"No time!" Tuck called to them. He could start. He could let them think he was going to get Gramp. They wouldn't know it was too late. And if they were swept out to sea in a little open boat with a snarled up propeller and no power, they may never bother him and Gramp again.

Tuck started to go up the bank and then he turned. Gramp hadn't learnt him a lot of things maybe, but one thing he had learnt him for sure: When folks are in trouble you help them if you can.

The water looked cold. Dark was coming on fast and the mud in the creek was slick and tricky. But he had to try—it was what Gramp would have done.

Tuck kicked off his shoes and slid out of his jacket. He took his knife out of his pocket and opened the big blade. If he hurried before the current got any swifter. . . .

He hit the water, feet first, in a leap-frog dive.

Few Grads Can Teach Science

Only six per cent of the teachers turned out by Georgia colleges last year were qualified to teach high school mathematics or science courses, according to State Education department records.

A report compiled by J. J. Medlin Jr., of the department's certification division, shows that in the 26 white and Negro colleges, a total of 1,764 students completed the requirements for some type of teaching certificate in the 1956-57 year.

Of that number, only 112 were qualified to teach high school mathematics or science.

Since firing of the Russian artificial satellites, there has been a demand throughout the country for more instruction in mathematics and science.

The Georgia State Board of Education and professional educators have been studying ways and means of increasing science teachers.

But at the moment, said Asst. State Supt. Claude Purcell in commenting on the situation, "if we expand math and science courses, where will we get the teachers?"

Purcell said he is considering the possibility of recommending summer workshop courses for that purpose. Some local superintendents, he said, have reported that they are using teachers who hold certificates in other fields, but have some science and mathematics training.

The education official said it is his idea that through such "course workshops" more teachers with math and science training could be qualified to teach those courses.

'Firewater' Potable But Inflammable

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 18 (AP)—Health department officials reported today that there was nothing wrong with the drinking water of nearby Casalpusterlengo except that it caught fire. Several housewives rushed to find out after they lighted matches near pots or bottles of water and saw flames spring up for a few seconds. Water company officials said the water was perfectly drinkable and its unusual action would disappear as soon as they figured a way to keep underground methane gas from seeping into the reservoirs.

Gaillard Wants Confidence Vote

PARIS, Dec. 18 (AP)—Premier Felix Gaillard today called for a new confidence vote in the National Assembly on the 1958 French budget.

The confidence vote to be taken Friday is not expected to present any great danger for the government.

Indonesia Snatches 2 Dutch Industries

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 18 (AP)—Premier Djuanda told newsmen today the government has officially taken over major Dutch industries in Indonesia and if the Dutch want compensation they must turn over Dutch West New Guinea.

But, he said, whether West New Guinea is yielded to Indonesia or not, the Dutch never will regain the powerful economic position they had held here.

If The Netherlands refuses to give up the New Guinea territory, he said, "We will continue our present course and eliminate Dutch economic interests in Indonesia."

Shortly after he spoke, 700 Dutch citizens sailed on the Dutch ship Waterman for Singapore in the biggest evacuation since the campaign against Hollanders opened three weeks ago. There were indications that most of the 46,000 Dutch nationals will leave within the next two weeks.

In its campaign for possession of West New Guinea, Indonesia has ordered all nonworking Dutch to get out of the country. Indonesian workers—without official government approval—have seized Dutch firms.

Djuanda's statement was the first official admission that such Dutch interests as shipping, port facilities, electricity and gas had been nationalized. Previously, officials had said that only Dutch port facilities had been permanently taken over by the government.

He said the takeover of Dutch enterprises was carried out under state of war and siege regulations.

Djuanda denied reports that unions had gotten out of hand in seizing Dutch firms.

He said trade relations between Indonesia and Holland have not been officially cut off but that Indonesia is making every effort to shift its foreign markets from Holland.

Tennessee's Rep. Cooper Dies at 64

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (UP)—Rep. Jere Cooper of Tennessee, chairman of the powerful tax writing House Ways and Means Committee, died tonight of a severe heart attack. He was 64.

Cooper died at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital which he entered Dec. 5 following a mild coronary thrombosis, or heart attack.

He was officially reported to have been recovering satisfactorily until he had a second attack at 6:20 p.m. (EST). The hospital described the second attack as "severe" and said Cooper died "immediately."

WIDOWER

Cooper, whose wife died in 1935 and whose only child died in 1951, is survived by three sisters and a brother. The sisters are Mrs. Royce Jones, Mrs. Norman Fuller, and Mrs. Paul Bradshaw, all of Dyersburg, Tenn. The brother is Fowler Cooper of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Hope Hart, Cooper's secretary, said she had visited the Democratic congressman for almost two hours this morning and had been delighted at his apparent progress.

DYERSBURG RITES

Miss Hart said that funeral arrangements had not yet been made, but she assumed that the funeral will be held in Dyersburg, Cooper's home.

Cooper, one of the most powerful but also one of the most shy lawmakers, was elected to the 71st Congress in 1928 and had served nearly 29 years consecutively since.

His death means that Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.) will take over in January as chairman of the committee that initiates all tax legislation. Mills said recently that Russia's Sputnik successes may have ruled out tax cuts for the next four or five years.

Cooper's death leaves the House lineup:

Democrats—230.
Republicans—200.
Vacant seats—5.

Descendants of Slave Face Oil-Lease Riches Prospect

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 18 (AP)—Descendants of Ino Hudgins, an African slave who arrived in America in chains, are sitting atop the hottest oil boom Texas has seen in years.

Ino was brought to Texas when this state was a republic and sold to a plantation owner in Matagorda County.

As his heirs tell the story, Ino was a good worker, but no master could break his pride.

"My father is a great man in my country," Ino is quoted as telling his master. "He is richer than you."

The Civil War freed Ino. He bought part of the land he had worked as a slave and kept adding to his holdings. He is estimated to have owned 300 acres.

He left it to his children and they passed it on to theirs, the tracts being cut into many pieces. Ino's descendants live in a collection of small homes scattered across an area known as "Hudgins' Settlement."

The Houston Chronicle reported today that several weeks ago an oil company put down core test drillings that showed hundreds of feet of oil sands.

Oilmen still are tight-lipped about the prospects. No actual well has been drilled.

But the descendants of Ino who still own the land are being offered $35 an acre for mineral leases. A great deal of land in Texas is leased to oil companies for $1 an acre.

The Chronicle termed the activity "the hottest oil lease play on the Texas Gulf coast in the past 25 years."

A-Plant's Power Goes To Homes

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18 (AP)—Electricity produced by atomic energy began flowing into commercial power lines today serving homes, factories and shops in southwestern Pennsylvania.

Initial output from the Shippingport, Pa., plant of Duquesne Light Co. was small—only about 5,000 kilowatts—and was described officially as being on a test basis.

After the official start at 12:39 a.m. the power output gradually was stepped up. This will be continued until the plant's full 60,000 kilowatt capacity is reached.

UNIQUE PLANT

The Shippingport plant is unique in several ways. It is the first full-scale nuclear power plant in the United States and the first major nuclear power station in the world devoted exclusively to production of electricity for peacetime purposes.

Standing by at the start were engineers and scientists of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, under whose supervision the plant was built; the Westinghouse Electric Corp., which designed, built and installed the atomic reactor; and Duquesne Light, which will operate the plant in conjunction with the AEC.

The nuclear reactor, has been in test operation since Dec. 2, but was not tied into the generating systems until today.

"MAJOR ADVANCE"

Philip A. Flegler, board chairman of Duquesne Light, hailed the start as "another major advance toward the day of abundant, low-cost atomic power." But he cautioned that "a lot of hard work remains to be done."

The cost of producing electricity at the plant is estimated at more than 55 mills per kilowatt. Modern coal-fired power stations can produce electricity for about 4 or 5 mills a kilowatt.

Though the cost of atomic-generated electricity is high, Duquesne says it will not have to increase its consumer rates. Cost of the plant has been reported as 107 million dollars.

MANY CUSTOMERS

When the plant reaches its 60,000 kilowatt rate it will be turning out enough electricity to supply the needs of a residential community of 250,000 persons. Duquesne has 450,000 customers in a population of 1½ million in the Pittsburgh area.

The Shippingport reactor is the most powerful in the country. It is fueled with 12 tons of natural uranium (U-238) and 165 pounds of highly enriched uranium (U-235).

Water under high pressure is circulated through the reactor. The heat from the nuclear reaction is used to convert water to steam which drives the electrical generators.

Barry Fitzgerald Has Checkup in Hospital

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP)—Irish actor Barry Fitzgerald entered Cottage Hospital for a checkup today, but doctors said they found his condition good and told him he could go home tomorrow.

Fitzgerald is 70 and has been living in semiretirement here for the last five years. He complained last Saturday of not feeling well.

Sputnik I, King of Space, Doomed to Early Death

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 18 (AP)—Sputnik I, history's first man-made satellite, will plunge to its death the first week in January the director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory predicted today.

The 23-inch 184-pound sphere was launched by Russia Oct. 4 in a scientific feat that astonished the world.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple said he based his estimate of a three-month life for the Soviet moon on recent calculations of its orbit.

Dr. Whipple foretold the Nov. 30 death of the final stage rocket that launched Sputnik I, pinpointing its final plunge almost a week in advance.

Although presumably launched at the same height, Sputnik I has outlasted its rocket because its compact spherical shape presents less atmospheric drag.

Actually Smithsonian scientists aren't sure just where Sputnik I is, although they are sure it still is aloft.

Much fainter to see than its rocket or Sputnik II, the sphere is near the limit of naked-eye visibility.

Smithsonian scientists know the plane of rotation of the sphere, but not its exact position. The "beep-beep" signal of Sputnik I made it possible to track with radio telescopes, in the first few weeks after its launching. The radio signal died when its batteries went dead after the first month.

Nagy Trial Is Likely As Climax

Hungary Puppets Arraign Clergy

VIENNA, Dec. 18 (AP)—Communist Hungary's puppet government is staging a wave of trials that will lead up to the prosecution of "freedom" Premier Imre Nagy for treason, informed sources said today.

The purpose of the trials is to erase the last vestige of the revolution which shook the Communist grip on Hungary before Russian troops and tanks crushed the October, 1956, struggle for freedom. At least three trials are under way, the sources said.

They are those of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty's secretary, Msgr. Zgon Turcsany, and 16 other priests, 18 workers of the Csepel iron and steel works, and members of the provisional government set up at Győr during the revolution, the sources said.

The sources reaffirmed that Gen. Pal Maleter, defense minister in the Nagy government, Gen. Istvan Kovacs, chief of staff of the Hungarian army, and Sandor Kopacsy, chief of the Budapest police, also are being tried, probably in the Kohida secret police prison in Sopron.

The reporting sources said Nagy and members of his government were believed held in Kohida prison where they were being prepared for trial.

The trials of Msgr. Turcsany and the Csepel workers are being held publicly in Budapest's Markotutka Court, although they have not been announced, the sources said.

Msgr. Turcsany, 16 priests and Lt. Col. Pal Lickovsky are charged with looting the files of the state church office.

The Csepel workers are charged with "counter revolutionary activity" and with killing an army major.

Jim West Dies; Owned a Fleet Of 40 Cadillacs

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 18 (AP)—Jim (Silver Dollar) West, fabulous multimillionaire who owned a fleet of more than 40 Cadillacs, died today. He was 55.

West made his money in oil, cattle, timber and banking.

A spokesman for the West interests said the West wealth is "impossible to ascertain without an inventory."

A magazine story several years ago indicated West was worth $100,000,000.

West numbered scores of police officers in Texas as his best friends. Many of his cars were motorized arsenals, including shotguns, riot guns and pistols.

Birth Rate Up, Non Whites Jump To 11 Per Cent of U.S. People

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Census Bureau reported today the nation's non-white population rose by 19 per cent during the past seven years while the white population increased about 13 per cent.

As a result, the proportion of non-whites total population edged upward from 10.4 per cent to 11 per cent between 1950 and 1957.

Bomb Victim's Wife Invited to Cairo Talk

TOKYO, Dec. 18 (AP)—The widow of Japan's famous H-bomb dusted fisherman, Aikichi Kuboyama, has been invited—expenses paid—to the Asian-African conference in Cairo starting Dec. 26 as an example of a nuclear tragedy.

Her husband died after fallout from the first U.S. H-bomb test at Bikini in 1954 fell on the fishing boat Lucky Dragon.

"UNDERWATER SATELLITE"

H-Bomb Submarine Charted by Russia

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The Soviet Union is authoritatively reported to be designing "underwater satellites," described as nuclear powered submarines armed with 50-ton, 70-foot-long ballistic missiles with a range of 1,500 miles.

Bomber Crashes At Mt. Palomar, 5 Airmen Die

PALOMAR MOUNTAIN, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP)—A B47 bomber crashed in the Palomar Observatory grounds today, not far from the home housing the world's largest telescope.

It crashed with terrific force and burst into flames. There were no survivors among the five persons aboard.

Airmen aboard were not identified.

The report appears in the sixtieth annual edition of Janes Fighting Ships, where it is included in the addenda. The book will be published tomorrow.

Submarines, nuclear propulsion, guided missiles and the growth of Soviet naval strength to second place in the world after the United States are the developments treated as most significant in the new edition.

The missiles to be carried by the Soviet nuclear submarine are described as the length and weight of a motor torpedo boat. They reportedly will carry hydrogen-bomb warheads.

A Janes spokesman said the Soviets had applied the name "underwater satellite." The projected Soviet craft's unofficial designation as a "satellite" is understood to mean it could circle the earth under water without surfacing.

The Soviet submarine fleet is said to number nearly 500 vessels compared with 204 in the U.S. Navy. An additional 200 Soviet submarines are expected to be commissioned by 1961. The U.S. has 18 submarines under construction and four more provided for in naval appropriations.

tary, and Frank A. Winter, assistant regional commissioner for audits, Internal Revenue Service, sergeant at arms. Retiring President Ahern is chairman of the executive committee. Other executive committeemen are Fred Wilkerson, warden at the U.S. Penitentiary; Walter E. Keyes, regional administrator, Housing and Home Finance Agency, and Burl F. Sanders, Atlanta postmaster.

Farouk's 2 Queens To Lose Fine Furs

CAIRO, Dec. 18 (UP)—Minks and other furs belonging to ex-King Farouk's two queens, Farida and Narriman, will be auctioned off Sunday, it was announced today.

The auction will be held under the law confiscating all property belonging to the former royal family. Money from the sale will be used to finance the country's social reform program.

Marshals Charge Interference

A Negro who allegedly interfered with two deputy marshals of Fulton Civil Court who were executing a dispossessory process has been charged with two offenses in Fulton Criminal Court. Deputy Marshals D. H. Bowdoin and L. P. McKee swore out accusations accusing Tinsley Perkins of 175 Perkins St., N.E., of obstructing a legal process and assault and battery on Monday. Bowdoin said he and McKee were at R-186 Brooks alley, N.E., Monday dispossessing a tenant for non-payment of rent when Perkins approached them and demanded to know "what was going on."

The marshal related that Perkins "shoved me" and went into the house where laborers were removing furniture. Inside, after being instructed to move on, Bowdoin said, Perkins shoved him again. The officer said Perkins, on being told to "go on," told him and his partner, "Nobody's going to tell me what to do." The two marshals, in arresting Perkins, were following a standing order from Chief Civil Judge J. Wilson Parker to bring into court any persons who interfere with marshals who are serving court papers.

Georgia Business Generally Good, Chamber Survey Shows

mistic than the Atlanta executive who commented, "... we may expect a decline in business to the extent of about 10 per cent, and that profits will be more severely curtailed in many lines."

He indicated this trend might run through the first few months, then, like a large number of others who look for a general upturn after mid-year, he added, "perhaps by the middle of the year it may be a little bit easier to predict the development of trends which might cause improvement in conditions."

The replies came from 38 communities in all parts of the state, and included 12 executives in various manufacturing lines, 10 retailers, 10 bankers, eight food processing firms, three utilities, three construction firms, three insurance and real estate organizations, and one unclassified.

PROFIT SQUEEZE

One comment that popped up frequently—regardless of whether the writers expected over-all business conditions to be as good, better or worse next year—was that business profits will probably be squeezed harder.

Here are some of the other more significant excerpts from the replies of Georgia's business leaders:

"The momentum of industrial development... should maintain Georgia's prosperity." (Homer G. Ray Jr., Gold Kist Peanut Growers, Moultrie.)

"I feel that Georgia and the Southeast are in the enviable position brought about by establishment of new industry, resulting, of course, in a progressive economy throughout the region. Industrial prospects throughout our state continue exceedingly bright." (W. E. Dillard, president and general manager, Central of Georgia Railway, Savannah.)

"... a possible downturn of not in excess of 5 per cent. Scattered unemployment, but not enough to get alarmed about." (Wallace Bruce, Citizens Bank of Toccoa.)

"Too many of our farms not being worked. Soil bank program is one cause, (also) too much land being sold to paper and pulpwood industries. We need some industry to offset our loss in agriculture." (Southeast Georgia botler.)

FARM OUTLOOK

"Being in a farming section, conditions do not look too favorable at present. The soil bank is affecting our farmers very much... closing out the small farmers and doing away with farm labor, which we feel will affect our business in the wrong direction." (Southeast Georgia banker.)

"Both in our community and in Georgia, I expect business conditions to slack off some. This is an industrial community. But in farming communities, the soil bank has hurt tremendously and will again." (North central Georgia newspaper publisher.)

"Some of the agricultural communities in Georgia will suffer because of the loss of the farmers' buying power due to shortage of several of our important crops." (Atlanta banker.)

"The chances for maintaining 1957 sales figures in 1958 are good, but to do so will require some assistance from the federal government. We need an easing of the financial requirements for new home building, among other things." (Atlanta retailer.)

HIGH PLATEAU

Next year will be "generally a little more competitive and tighter than 1957—still on a high plateau." (Richard H. Rich, president, Rich's.)

"Might see interest rates going down (and) deficit spending by government." (Mills B. Lane, president, Citizens & Southern National Bank, Atlanta.)

"I believe that business will be increasingly competitive, with narrower margins of profit and

Confidential, Whisper Fined For Obscenity

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18 (AP)—Confidential and Whisper magazines were convicted of conspiracy to publish obscenity today and ordered fined $5,000 each.

Superior Judge H. Burton Noble returned the verdict, basing his ruling on the transcript of the publications' criminal libel trial last summer. The verdict brought to a close California's actions against the two magazines.

The ruling came after brief arguments by defense attorney Arthur Crowley and Deputy Attorney General Ray Mombiose in the non-jury trial. The prosecution and defense had agreed to let them stand on the transcript after the criminal libel charges were dropped. A jury failed to reach a verdict on those charges last Oct. 1 and was dismissed.

alliance has ever taken a position favoring negotiations with the Soviets.

United States spokesmen, however, asserted that the "United States" position on negotiations for disarmament has been and is that we should negotiate through the United Nations.

The final wording of the communiqué to clarify these points was under discussion tonight in a drafting committee of the foreign ministers of Great Britain, France, Belgium and Canada. The communiqué, covering also agreements on political coordination, economic collaboration in the Middle East and Africa, scientific and technical cooperation will be submitted to a final plenary session of the conference at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

NEW DECLARATION

President Eisenhower and the heads of the other 14 delegations will subscribe also to a new declaration of principle for NATO, marking its entry into the fields of economic, political and scientific cooperation after eight years as a purely military coalition and underlining allied interest in areas outside the formal geographic limits of the treaty.

The section on defense is expected to say in about 400 words that:

1. Its decision of NATO that stocks of nuclear weapons and warheads should be established in Europe.

2. That in view of the present Soviet policy the council decides that the intermediate range ballistic missile will have to be put at the disposal of the supreme allied commander in Europe, at present U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad.

TWO LOOPHOLES

Although unanimous agreement on this formula was reportedly interpreted by the United States as constituting a "moral commitment" to accept missiles and missile bases, the procedure envisaged leaves at least two loopholes.

First, it is left to Gen. Norstad to decide where the bases should be situated from a military-technical standpoint. Second, not until the meeting of NATO defense ministers and chiefs of staff in March will the individual countries be required to say whether or not they will accept them.

In approving the accord in principle, the Norwegian and Danish delegations expressed the hope and belief they would not be asked to harbor nuclear missiles. The West Germans neither accepted nor rejected the new weapons in the foreign ministers' and head-of-governments' meetings.

UNDER U.S. CONTROL

Britain and Turkey already have expressed willingness to accept missiles and France and The Netherlands are expected to follow suit. The nuclear warheads for the missiles would remain under the control of the United States in such agreements, the missiles themselves would be in the hands of the separate national forces. Thus the complete weapon could be employed only by a joint decision of the United States and the individual continental country.

It was reported that the United States does not contemplate stationing any complete U.S. missile units in any continental state. In recent talks with Britain, however, this possibility was discussed.

Proposals for sounding out the Soviet Union on disarmament were first tentatively advanced by Norwegian and Danish leaders and the first concrete proposal was made by French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau at Tuesday's meeting of the foreign ministers.

It was his view that an approach should be made to revive disarmament talks at the level of foreign ministers without too specific reference to the old five-power U.N. disarmament subcommittee—the United States, Britain, France, Canada and the Soviet Union. This view received some support from Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, on the theory that a new approach through diplomatic channels would be more likely to be fruitful than an unvarnished renewal of the five-power talks.

one phase of a broader series of committee hearings that dealt with labor violence, and the prosecution of offenders, in Tennessee.

This inquiry was also wound up today, with McClellan saying it revealed "a pattern of wanton disregard for the law."

Today's first witness was James Spence Galloway, who testified he gave $1,000 in cash to Sam C. Jones, a Chattanooga bondsman, to fix a case in Schoolfield's court.

3-YEAR SENTENCE

Galloway said he wanted a new trial after having been convicted of concealing stolen property. He had been given a three-year prison sentence.

The witness said Jones told him "he could get it handled for $1,000."

Galloway said he sold a filling station he owned to raise the $1,000, which he said he gave to Jones in cash shortly after June 10, 1954.

GOT NEW TRIAL

On June 23, Schoolfield granted a new trial to Galloway, who then pleaded guilty and received a three-year sentence which was suspended.

"You felt the $1,000 was well spent?" inquired Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel.

"I did," Galloway replied. Jones testified without hesitation that he took the $1,000 from Galloway to get the case "fixed."

The bondsman said he got a lawyer friend of Schoolfield to approach the judge with the proposition that Galloway be allowed to escape a prison term for $1,000.

HAD CONVERSATION

Jones said he later had a conversation outside the Chattanooga courthouse with Brown, an attorney and friend of Schoolfield. He quoted Brown as telling him:

"I understand you've got $1,000 for Judge Schoolfield's campaign."

Jones said he then turned over the cash to Brown, after having gotten the assent of H. L. Boling, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 515 in Chattanooga. Galloway had testified he talked to both

The Atlanta Tuberculosis Assn.'s Christmas Seal Fund reached $78,168.00 Wednesday, with contributions running about even with last year's, W. W. Neal, campaign chairman, said.

Fulton, DeKalb and Rockdale counties who have not yet contributed should mail their donations to the Atlanta TB Assn., 723 Piedmont Ave., NE, Neal said. No door-to-door solicitation is conducted for Christmas Seal contributions.

"The immediate objective of the Atlanta TB Assn.," Neal said, "is to see that modern treatment facilities are available for tuberculosis patients in the Atlanta metropolitan area."

He pointed out that Christmas Seal facilities for patient care are located at Grady Hospital, Evaluation clinics for TB patients in Fulton and DeKalb counties also are financed by seal funds.

TENTATIVE 1958 BUDGET CITY OF ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Under the Charter Amendment enacted at the General Session of the Georgia Legislature in 1937, a new Budget law for the City of Atlanta was enacted, with the following provisions:

"Section 10. On or before the first Monday in December of each year, the budget commission shall estimate the amount of normal receipts of the City of Atlanta for the following calendar year, together with a tentative appropriation bill. The budget commission shall include in its anticipations for the next year a sum not to exceed the normal revenue collected by the City of Atlanta from all sources during the period from January 1 to November 1 of the current year, and the estimated revenue for the remainder of the current year. They shall tentatively appropriate a sum sufficient to cover the debt service, including the sinking fund and interest on bonded indebtedness. The tentative estimate of receipts and appropriations for debt service shall be submitted to the budget commission named for the year in which the fund is to be expended, and published one time in a daily newspaper, and the budget commission named for the year in which the fund is to be expended is directed to revise said budget so that the total anticipated revenue for the current year shall not exceed the normal revenue received from all sources during the preceding year, except collections from tax executions on real estate and on personal property and choses in action owned by the City, provided that there may be added to such anticipations, a sum equal to not more than 85% of all tax executions on real estate and 50% of all tax executions on personal property not more than three years old and choses in action owned by the City and certified by the tax assessor as being solvent and collectible. The budget commission shall also allocate a sufficient sum to provide for debt service, including sinking fund and interest on bonded indebtedness, which sum shall not be diverted to any other department by the mayor and board of aldermen. This shall constitute the final budget and shall be filed with the mayor and board of aldermen on or before the third Monday in January of the year during which said budget shall operate. When such budget has been filed, the same shall be binding upon the mayor and board of aldermen, without any action of approval or disapproval."

Planting of Billionth U.S. Pine Seedling Marks Georgia's Lead in Forestation

BY MARJORY RUTHERFORD

MACON, Dec. 18—The nation's one-billionth pine seedling was planted here Wednesday.

Governor Griffin and Jody Shattuck, 1957 "Miss Georgia," spaded the Georgia-grown baby loblolly pine—delivered via helicopter by "Smokey the Bear"—into an honor plot at the Georgia Forestry Center with a gold-plated shovel.

The symbolic planting reaffirmed the fact that Georgia leads the country in tree-planting.

The U.S. Forest Service, celebrating a record year in reforestation, selected Georgia as site for the history-making event because at the end of 1956 this state had planted more acreage to trees—a total of 750,000 acres—than any other state in the union.

This year again Georgia takes the official lead in U.S. reforestation with production of 175,000,000 pine seedlings and 750,000 acres planted.

The governor and "Miss Geo-gia"—like "Smokey"—arrived by helicopter. That wasn't scheduled; the governor's party, fog-bound at Cochran, were rescued by a U.S. Air Force "whirlybird" dispatched by Maj. Gen. A. V. P. Anderson of Robins Air Force Base, who attended the Macon ceremony.

The program also included dedication of two new pine seedling nurseries which are the country's largest and a $150,000 seed-extractor facility. The Matthew Page Nursery at Reidsville and the Phillip Morgan Nursery, each of which cost around $400,000, will have a combined annual production of 150,000,000 seedlings.

The seed extractor, a new addition to the Macon forestry center, can cure 3,000 bushels of cones every three days and extract and clean a ton of pine seed daily, Georgia Forestry Commission Guyton DeLoach reported.

Griffin paid tribute to Georgia's rapidly-expanding forestry program in his address here. He cited the fact that forestry and wood products have become the state's leading industries, accounting for more than $750,000,000 annually in state income. Georgia now has 24,000,000 acres of forestlands.

Janice Threadgill of Temple, the 1957 "Miss Keep Georgia Green," and 10-year-old Linda Jane Brown of Macon, "Miss Pine Seedling," added a decorative note to the program.

As the tree-planting concluded, smoke still hung in the air from fire-fighting demonstrations. During one demonstration a Navy torpedo bomber, converted into a U.S. Forest Service tanker, dumped 200 gallons of water on a flaming stretch of timber. Minutes later helicopter lifts dispatched fire-fighting equipment and "fog-jumpers" who extinguished the blaze.

More than 2,000 live pine-seedlings were given away to the dedication audience. Recipients included two-and-one-half year-old Lyn Gore of Macon, who went home clutching her seedling like a giant lollipop.

G. Phillip Morgan Sr., pioneer leader in state forestry and first chairman of the Georgia Forestry Commission board of directors, attended the ceremony here. Other dignitaries included William S. Swinger, assistant chief, U.S. Forest Service, Washington, D. C.; Otto Lindh, regional forester, U.S. Forest Service, Atlanta; Macon's Mayor B. F. Merritt Jr., Kenneth Carwell, vice chairman, Bibb County Commission, and Kirk Sullivan of Union-Camp Paper Co., Savannah, who introduced the governor.

Films at Library To Stress Yule Theme

Films with Christmas themes will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Atlanta Public Library.

They will include the Bell Singers of Canada and "The Song of Christmas," with music by Roy Ringwald.

The final film of the evening will depict Charles Dickens' story of the visit by Mr. Pickwick and the Pickwickians to Dingley Dell Farm.

Fuss Grows Over Police Civil Service

A tug-of-war over a proposed change in police civil service picked up tempo Wednesday as Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the aldermanic police committee, said he favors placing the department under the city's general civil service program.

Employees in the police identification bureau—presently classified as civilian employees and as such under city personnel director Carl Sutherland—Wednesday signed a petition asking that they be brought under the present police civil service.

Virtually all policemen have signed petitions urging that no change be made in their civil service. A spokesman for the officers said Wednesday the only ones who have not signed are those on sick leave and those who have been absent for other reasons since the petitions have been drawn.

Under the present police civil service, the police committee, of which Gilliam is chairman, has the exclusive right to dismiss police personnel.

The proposed change would invest the chief with discretionary power to fire men and would give Sutherland's board the right to make promotions on "merit examinations."

However, Gilliam said he favored the change because:

1. Various reports since 1938 have favored the change.

2. Mayor Hartsfield has always favored civil service.

3. Presently 24 city departments are under the general program. After the latest developments, Jenkins said he failed to see the significance of the argument. He said that, in his opinion, the police department had one of the best civil service programs in the country, one admirably suited to the needs of the department.

"The men are the only ones concerned with this," he said. "If they are satisfied, and they have said that they are, then I see no further need for argument."

Woman Seeking Trousseau Held As a Shoplifter

A petite brunette who came to Atlanta to buy her trousseau was jailed Wednesday on a charge of shoplifting, police said.

Detectives E. H. Scott and E. W. Felder said Miss Theresa McDuffie, 22, of Fitzgerald, was charged with taking items valued at $522.38 from a downtown department store.

She was released under $500 bond on charges of disorderly conduct-shoplifting, detectives said. Miss McDuffie, a former bookkeeper, told police she was to be married soon and came to Atlanta to purchase her trousseau.

Glynn County To Vote On Public Port Funds

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Dec. 18 (AP)—Brunswick and Glynn County voters will be asked to approve public financing of a major port facility most of whose costs would be borne by an industrial firm which wants to build a plant here.

The city and county commissions today called referendums for Jan. 21 for issuing one million dollars in bonds each.

The total of two million dollars, if approved, would enable construction of a dock expected to cost around $1,200,000 and the relocation of the local plant of the American Cressoting Co., a subsidiary of Union Bag-Camp Paper Corp.

The cost of the dock, which would be available for general use, would be retired by income from a 30-year lease which the Brunswick Port Authority is ready to enter into with the unnamed industrial prospect.

Local officials said with acquisition of the property they would also press Gov. Marvin Griffin for allocation of a promised $2,100,000 for a state dock.

The new plant would be a heavy user of ocean transport. While asking not to be identified yet, the firm approved an announcement by local officials that said the port authority has "assurance of sufficient revenues to meet its lease obligations from an industry proposing to locate in Brunswick and to utilize the municipal dock facility."

Fat Boy Says He Kissed Her

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:
I am a 13-year-old girl. My problem is about a boy who is also 13. He is very fat and the kids at school tease and make fun of him all the time. I felt sorry for him because I knew he was embarrassed and unhappy. So, instead of teasing him, I just said, "Hi" when I saw him, and that was the end of it, the very end.

My 9-year-old brother knows him and they usually walk home from school together. This fat boy told him that he had kissed me many times and my brother told Mom. Now my whole family is teasing me about ("Falso") and they do it in front of other people. My grandmother even said that one of her friends saw a little fat boy kissing me.

Mrs. Ricker, I haven't even been near that boy for ages. I can't talk to Mom about this because she just laughs and I'm afraid this crazy talk will start rumors at school and ruin my reputation.

I haven't done anything to cause them. Should I try to make this fat boy come and tell my parents that what he said is not true or what should I do?

I think it is unfair and unfortunate that your parents are taking this whole thing as a big joke. Obviously, they are looking at the situation as if you were still a small child. They do not realize (1) they are upsetting you; (2) their playful (?) teasing can turn into stories which may really hurt your reputation at school.

It was thoughtful and charitable of you to feel sorry for the fat boy. But he took advantage of your concern and told the stories to get attention and bolster his own ego. Under these circumstances he should be made to tell the truth but I doubt if he will do it willingly.

My advice is to try to get your brother to invite him to come in the house some day when your mother is home. In front of her I suggest you tell him you know about the lies he has told and that you want him to tell your mother (and anyone else who may be present) they are not true.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:
I am almost 16 years old and I am going out with a boy who is almost 17. His club is sponsoring a hayride which will be chaperoned by adults. I know how to behave properly and my boy friend treats me very respectfully.

The problem is, my parents are not quite sure if they should let me go on the hayride. I would appreciate your excellent advice.
If your parents approve of your boy friend, and the club group as a whole, I think you should be allowed to go on the hayride. Occasionally my husband and I have chaperoned parties and hayrides for mixed groups of high school students. Perhaps these groups are unusual but we never have seen anyone do anything which a parent could complain about, yet everyone had a wonderful time, including us.

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through this column only—as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Sweater Crowd Has New Fad

The newest jewelry fad among the school and college crowd is the conventional fluted gold circle pin. It is enough to dress up a Shetland sweater or a tweed coat, yet not too much.

So if there is a young girl on your Christmas list for whom you have not already found a present, I suggest one of these. She'll be thrilled with either a real gold circle pin or one of the very good gold-filled variety.

STARS OF FILM TO PREMIERE HERE FRIDAY
"Old Yeller" and Young Kevin Corcoran

Mischievous Young Star Tops Bill for Boys Club

By BETTY CARROLLTON

One of Hollywood's youngest show business veterans will share top billing with members of the Atlanta Boys Club Friday.

When "Old Yeller" is premiered at the Rialto Theater Friday for the benefit of the Boys Club, members of the organization will be on hand to participate in the program.

Several outstanding members of the club, who attended a special pre-premiere showing of the movie, were especially attracted by the magnetic performance of winsome, freckle-faced Kevin Corcoran, who stars in the film with Fess Parker, Dorothy McGuire and, of course, Old Yeller.

"I KNOW"

"I know just how he feels," one boy remarked during a tender scene.

Although he's one of a family of seven movie youngsters, the mop-top star is "all boy." When the 7-year-old joined the Walt Disney studio a year ago, the movie mogul immediately dubbed him a "typical American boy." Pug-nosed Kevin was "completely unprofessional and absolutely genuine." Fame as an actor has changed him little.

BEGAN CAREER AT 2

Kevin began his career at the age of 2, when he played what he terms "little kids" in movies. Before he was 4, he had appeared in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," as James Stewart's son in "The Glenn Miller Story," and in several TV plays. He gained national recognition when he was Jimmy Durante's "straight man" on a Christmas TV show. Kevin stole the show with his ad libs.

His role in "Old Yeller" fits the youth's personality to a "T." Mischievous Kevin loves life—and animals. (He maintains his own back yard zoo which includes a dog named Duke, a cat named Sambo, a frog named Herman, a parakeet named Baby, and numerous tropical fish.)

He found it was "real easy" to work with forest and field friends during the filming of the picture. ("Old Yeller" abounds with animals and birds, and features some spectacular animal action scenes.)

BOY NEXT DOOR

Meeting the young actor is the same as getting to know the mischievous boy next door. When he wants to, Kevin can out-talk any youngster his age, and can hold his own with most adults in any kind of argument.

During shooting the movie in California last summer, the young star admitted, in an interview for The Constitution, that at home he often joins in "free-for-alls" with his older brothers, and "generally" he comes out on top.

His engaging grin changed quickly to a grimace when he disclosed, "I hate school—and bathtubs."

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring Friday's premiere of "Old Yeller," and the entire proceeds will benefit the local Boys Club. A number of tickets are being held to be sold at the box office.

Couple Marks 51st Wedding Anniversary

Yesterday was a red letter day on the calendar for Mr. and Mrs. Brit W. Butler of 349 Connally St., for it marked their 51st wedding anniversary.

Mr. Butler, a retired textile worker, and Mrs. Butler have two daughters and five sons, and "lots of grandchildren," according to Mrs. Butler.

The daughters are Mrs. Pearl Bradley of Atlanta and Mrs. Ollie May Butler of Cashiers, N.C. The five sons are Thomas and William C. Butler of Atlanta; W. M. Butler of LaGrange; I. U. Butler of St. Augustine, and C. T. Butler of Newport News, Va.

Campbell Students Got a Taste Of the Girls' 'Mr. Raisin' Project

By VIRGINIA DYSARD

The life of the tiny "Mr. Raisin" played a big part in the Christmas holidays for the girls in the home economics class at Campbell High School in Fairburn.

The Christmas spirit always brings with it the urge to give presents and these junior and senior girls have gotten right into the spirit by baking their presents. The principal, assistant principal, counselor, secretary and others who got wind of the baking were anxious to receive their gifts.

The fragrant aroma of baking cookies that drifted out in the halls for days was more than enough to have these "executives" of the school drooling in anticipation of their gifts.

It all started back in the early fall when the students began a project on raisins. This was where the plump little Mr. Raisin made his first appearance.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION All the news For WOMEN

The girls found out all about raisins. They ransacked old recipe files, cookbooks and other books to learn how raisins are grown and where, how they are dried, how they are shipped and where. They learned the calorie content, sugar content, vitamin content, mineral content and any other content you can mention.

Someone was put in charge of the scrapbook, "This is Your Life, Mr. Raisin," where all the information was kept.

To end a neatly done piece of work, the book closed with recipes using raisins, from appetizer to dessert, and some for the between-meal snack, too.

When the recipes were all compiled, the fun really began as the girls tried to decide on a Christmas cookie to bake for the school "executives."

The search finally narrowed down to two recipes. They couldn't decide between these two, so the girls decided to make them both. In one class period they made about 500 cookies, enough for five boxes.

But since each box contained far fewer than 100 cookies, the girls had to admit they had eaten quite a few themselves.

Not wanting to leave out anyone in the school, the girls decided to give their present to the whole school. They baked another batch to serve as dessert in the school cafeteria so everyone would get a taste of the project.

Besides giving the girls a real insight into the fact that a simple little raisin can be so nutritious, they have learned how versatile it can be. This project is only one of several which the girls carry out every term.

The cookies have been tested by highly critical tongues and won high praise. The home economics girls at Campbell High School and their teacher, Mrs. Douglas Byrd, hope you enjoy making and eating the cookies as much as they have.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES

1 1/2 lb. candied cherries
1/2 lb. candied pineapple (may substitute 1 lb. fruit cake mix for cherries and pineapple)
1 lb. dates
1 lb. raisins
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 sticks butter
2 eggs
2 cups flour
1 tsp. cloves
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. soda
1 cup pineapple juice or other juice

Cream butter and sugar, add eggs and mix well. Sift together dry ingredients, add and mix well. Add liquid and stir until smooth. Pour over fruit and mix until fruit is coated with batter. Drop by teaspoons (about the size of a walnut). Bake on greased sheet at 400 degrees for about 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 10 to 11 dozen.

FRUIT DROPS

1 cup sweetened condensed milk
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup corn flakes
2 cups coconut
1 cup chopped dates, figs, prunes, raisins or fruit cake mix

Combine all ingredients. Stir enough to mix well. Drop from teaspoon in mounds on greased cookie sheet, about two inches apart. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 12 minutes or until delicately browned. Remove carefully while warm. Makes 30 cookies.

Garnish Table With Fruits

Constitution Food Editor

A colorful fruit centerpiece with flowers, holly leaves, and a big red bow bring Christmas spirit to the table.

Take some bright red apples, golden oranges and tangerines, luscious yellow bananas, and a deep green avocado or two and there before your eyes is an economical, attractive and healthful decoration. For variety, a few pears and Emperor grapes make the centerpiece perfect.

Mrs. Betty Alexander, Extension consumer information specialist, reports that the effect of last week's freeze in Florida already is being felt here. Beans, peppers, cucumbers and radishes are scarce and somewhat higher. Most salad greens are plentiful and reasonable in price, while lettuce is slightly higher and quality will vary. Sweet potatoes, dry onions, and Irish potatoes are about the same.

HOLIDAY FAVORITE

Ham is a favorite holiday item and will be featured in some stores. Top grades of beef are about the same in price and supply, while lower grades are up in price. This will cause higher prices on ground beef, bologna and frankfurters.

Large size eggs represent one of the best values this week, because of the heavy supply.

Turkeys are five to six cents higher in price than the before Christmas period, especially hen turkeys. Large size toms are the most plentiful and the best value. A Long Island duckling can be a special treat at this time.

The supply of dried fruits is coming to market now, but in considerably less volume than last year. The reduction is mainly in raisins and dried prunes, which are the two biggest dried fruit sellers.

CHOICE FRUITS

Dried fruits are made from the finest, fully ripened, choice fruits. They have about 75 per cent of their moisture content removed, either by sundrying or dehydration. So much moisture is removed that organisms do not grow, but when storing they should be covered and kept in a cool place.

Dried fruits are economical even though the price per pound may seem high. Since most of the moisture is removed, you are buying only actual food value. They are excellent sources of minerals and other nutrients of fresh fruits.

To pep up the fruit add slices of lemon or orange, a few cloves or a piece of stick cinnamon while cooking. Try mixed dried fruits cooked together until tender, with a little brown sugar, to make an excellent accompaniment to a pork roast dinner.

PRUNE FRITTERS

Stewed prunes
American cheese
Eggs
Fine white bread crumbs
Pit prunes and fill centers with small pieces of cheese. Dip first in slightly beaten eggs, then in bread crumbs, again in eggs and again in bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat heated to 390 degrees until a golden brown. Serve hot. Delicious with roasts of pork, lamb or veal. These fritters make a most attractive garnish for a platter of hot or cold meats.

PRUNE BETTY

2 cups cooked prunes
2 apples
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup butter
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 cup prune juice
Pit prunes and cut in pieces. Pare, core and slice apples. Arrange one-third the bread crumbs in baking dish, cover with half the prunes, sugar, apples and butter. Sprinkle lightly with cinnamon. Add half of remaining crumbs, then remaining prunes, sugar, apples, butter and more cinnamon. Cover with crumbs and add prune juice. Cover dish and bake about one hour in a moderate oven (375 degrees). If bread crumbs are somewhat dry, more juice should be added. Serves 8.

Miss Huggel Is Wed to Dr. Whatley

At an afternoon ceremony taking place in Munch's Church in Munchenstein, Switzerland, Miss Ruth Elizabeth Huggel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Werner Huggel of Munchenstein, was married to Dr. Claude K. Whatley Jr. of LaGrange.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. Whatley of LaGrange. He and his bride plan to make their home in Cambridge, England, where he is now stationed with the U.S. Air Force Dental Corps.

The bride is a graduate of Basel Technical School and has studied for two years at the University of Basel, Switzerland. She has also studied at a private French Language and Commercial School in Vervy, Switzerland, and at Cambridge, England.

Dr. Whatley was enrolled for three years at Emory University where he was a member of the SAE Fraternity and the Phi Delta Omega honorary pre-medical and pre-dental fraternity. Later he attended Emory University School of Dentistry and became a member of the Psi Omega professional fraternity. He received his D.D.S. degree in 1956, and since that time has served in the Air Force Dental Corps in Europe.

Alpha Gams To Hold Tea

The Atlanta Club of Alpha Gamma Delta will hold a Christmas tea on Sunday, Dec. 22, from 3 to 5 p.m. to honor undergraduates and their mothers.

The affair will be held in the home of Mrs. Shelly C. Davis, 1259 Peachtree Battle Ave., NW. Mrs. Hillary G. Bailey, Mrs. Ronald T. Pentecost and Mrs. Brooks Pearson have charge of arrangements.

Celestine Sibley Cake-Baking Ceremony

The way my children's grandmother, MUV, really prefers to come a-visiting is well rationed. In addition to rope-tied suitcases, lockers and zipper bags, she likes to bring a miscellaneous assortment of boxes and crates containing such things as some of Mr. Dan'l Barnes' smoked sausage, a few jars of preserves, a ham, a sack of pecans from her trees, a dressed chicken or two and a couple of homemade cakes.

But sometimes the circumstances of her travel work against a well-provisioned expedition into Darkest Atlanta and she comes practically empty-handed. (That is, excusing a quart bottle of coffee, two dozen sandwiches, a dozen hard-boiled eggs and a few cookies and bananas to stave off starvation on the way. Muv calls this a lunch but sometimes my family subsists on it for two or three days!)

If she can't have her way about provisioning the trip Muv at least comes prepared to get a little cooking done while she's here. She brings a supply of starched and ironed aprons and a clutch of yellowed and time-worn recipes.

"Now you decide which you all would enjoy the most," she says as we shuffle through her cake recipes.

"The Lane cake!" we answer as in one voice, that being a family Christmas favorite for many years.

"Well, all right," Muv nods. "But what about Mrs. Lupton's pound cake and maybe one of those pineapple creams? I took one to the last church supper we had and it went right well. Wasn't a crumb of it left."

She knows well there won't be a crumb left of anything that emerges from the oven at our house. They even eat the cakes I make, and that's going some. But we discuss cakes and cake-making for quite some time for the pure gastronomic pleasure in the words of the ritual. "Take yolks of eight eggs and a pound of butter . . . chop pecans . . . grate one fresh coconut . . . heat well."

We mull over the recipes and discuss the matter of hand beating versus the electric mixer. (Muv favors a hand-beaten cake and I do, too, as long as hands other than mine are doing it.) We put on a fresh pot of coffee and sit around the kitchen table reading old cook books and lamenting the high cost of real butter, which, according to Muv, does more for the personality of a cake than a good disposition does for a girl.

And then Muv begins to assemble the ingredients. The only trouble is that accustomed as we are to slap-dash cake-making at our house (Don't tell, I even use mixes!) we forget that it is a ceremony with Muv. For one thing, the butter and the eggs must be left out of the refrigerator overnight. For three nights now Muv has carefully left them out and some late-snacking member of the family has either used them up or thoughtlessly set them back in the refrigerator.

She must have her favorite brand of cake flour and fresh baking powder. She sniffs the pecan meats to be sure they're not last year's crop and therefore rancid. She examines the cake pans, rubbing a finger around the corners to be sure some slovenly person hasn't broiled a chop or toasted a piece of bread on the metal reserved for cakes.

Then, bright and early in the morning when she can have the kitchen to herself, she begins. The licking, scraping battalion of children is asleep but it's all right. Muv is cognizant of her duties as a grandmother and she saves all frosting bowls for them.

The only thing that disturbs her about the cake-baking ceremony is that when it is over, the sense of well-being that comes from having goodies "on hand" is so short-lived. She would like to have a backlog of cake for the holidays but a cake at our house is a transient thing and I don't know why this discourages her. Some of the loveliest things in life are seen but fleetingly. You can't store a waterfall or keep a rainbow, can you? So it is with Muv's cakes.

Maxie Smith Is Engaged to Mr. McClendon

ROCKLEDGE, Dec. 18 — Mr. and Mrs. George Smith announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Maxie Smith, to John Edward McClendon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McClendon of Dublin.

The marriage will take place at the Smith home here at 3:30 o'clock on Saturday, Dec. 21.

Both Miss Smith and her fiancé are employed at the J. P. Stevens Company.

Miss Williams, James Walker To Be Married

SYLVESTER, Dec. 18 — Mr. and Mrs. Elkin Williams announce the engagement of their daughter, Jo Anne, to James Lelan Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Walker, also of Sylvester.

Miss Barbara Brown Lists Wedding Plans

Bride-elect Barbara Brown is just back from Eastman, her former home, where for the past two weeks she has been honor guest at a series of pre-nuptial parties.

Her marriage to Donald F. Dean of Adel, now principal of the Southside Elementary School in Dahlonega, will take place at the First Baptist Church of Eastman at an evening ceremony on Dec. 27. The Rev. Max O'Neal will officiate at the service which will be followed by a reception at the American Legion Home with Miss Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Brown, as hosts.

Miss Roxane Brown will be her sister's maid of honor, and serving as bridesmaids will be Mrs. Ethridge Paulk and Mrs. L. K. Jordan of Fitzgerald, Miss Patricia Puett and Mrs. B. B. Creekmore of Atlanta, Mrs. Mays Dobbins of Mt. Vernon, and Miss Roselyn Woodward of Eastman.

Mr. Dean's uncle, James Dean of Adel, will be his best man.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Thursday, Dec. 19, 1957 19

In the double role of usher-groomsman will be William and John Dean, Charles Whitehurst of Atlanta, Joe Avery of Dahlonega, Dr. Robert Sirmmons of Columbus and Sam Aronson of Adel.

Mr. Dean and his bride will tour north Georgia on their wedding trip, after which they will live in Dahlonega. Miss Brown moved here with her family in June. A gifted musician, she taught music in the public schools of Fitzgerald for the two years previously.

Annie Lou Hardy Debutantes to Model At Charity Luncheon

Atlanta's debutantes will pause midst their Christmas partying to parade their youthful beauty for sweet charity's sake. For on Saturday they will entertain at luncheon and a fashion revue at the Driving Club, with the proceeds to go to their charity, the Atlanta Girls' Club.

Miss Sally Murphy, the Debutante Club vice president, is chairman in charge of the affair which begins at 12:30.

"The party will be informal," she said, "with no runway and no formal announcing. The girls will just parade among the tables which will be adorned with arrangements of holly and red candles."

The debutantes themselves will model the latest in cruise fashions. Serving as mannikins will be Misses Jeannine Clark, Mary Read, Elizabeth Appleton, Jean Carter, Jane Carver, Elizabeth Cassels, Jane Cotter, Judy Crockett, Willie Daniel, Lynn Ford, Bootsie Griffin, Gail Minnich, Styles Young, Jay Pharr, Jean Candler and Barbara Turner.

MISS PENNY REINSCH arrives Saturday from Duke University to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Reinsch on Northside drive.

MISS JODY BARNETT and Miss Markey O'Callahan are hoping for a white Christmas, for they leave Saturday for Joliet, Ill., to visit Misses Mancy and Diane Blair for 10 days. If the fates are kind they will get in some sledding and skiing.

The Blair sisters are daughters of Mrs. Leonard Pietsch and the late Hiram Blair of Atlanta. They lived on Huntington road before moving to Joliet.

MRS. A. Q. SMITH leaves during the weekend for Miami to spend Christmas with her son and daughter, the Jan R. Smiths of Miami Shores. She will attend the Orange Bowl game on Jan. 1, and will also visit Nassau before returning home.

DR. AND MRS. ALEXIS HAL DAVISON and their young son, Peter, are expected to arrive Dec. 28 from Charlottesville, Va., to spend the holidays with Dr. Davison's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Hal Davison, on Habersham road.

THE MALCOLM THERRELS are off for Florida on Sunday. They will be guests at the Ivanhoe on Miami Beach until after New Year's.

BROCK McCONNELL arrives tomorrow from Lehigh University and with his parents, the Wayne B. McConnells, he leaves Saturday for Boca Raton, Fla., to spend Christmas with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis.

MISS JANE DRENNON, daughter of Cmdr. and Mrs. Raleigh E. Drennon Jr. of Adak, Alaska, who is a senior at Salem Academy, Winston-Salem, N.C., will spend Christmas with her grandparents, the Raleigh Drennon Sr., on N. Pelham road.

THE ARRIVAL HERE TODAY of New York realtor William Zeckendorf recalls that Mrs. Zeckendorf (who incidentally will not accompany him) is a former Georgian, having grown up as Marion Griffin in Waycross.

An important figure among New York's women leaders, Mrs. Zeckendorf served as chairman of the seventh annual Animal Kingdom Ball held last January at the Pierre. She is also a former vice president of the American Women's Voluntary Services, Inc., and is a director on the board of the Ballet Theatre Foundation.

Mr. Zeckendorf will fly his own plane to Atlanta, remaining just long enough to address the annual awards dinner of the Georgia chapter, American Institute of Architects, this evening at the Biltmore.

MRS. J. WARREN ARMISTEAD, president of the Atlanta Writers' Club, will hold a workshop and tea at 3 o'clock today at her Peachtree circle home. Wally Folk St. John will conduct the workshop.

Mrs. John Pfeiffer, president of the Georgia Writers' Club, will pour, and the hostess will be assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Danforth Bearse, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Stanley Armistead.

Serve Groups Instant Coffee

Instant coffee is the answer to serving large groups. For 32 servings, use one 2-ounce jar of instant coffee to 6 quarts of boiling water for coffee of average strength. Pour measured coffee into large server. Add boiling water. Stir to assure a brew of even strength. Do not add instant coffee directly to boiling water—it will foam and overflow.

Iris Club to Plant Orchard at Art Assn.

Members of the Iris Garden Club will add another beauty spot to Atlanta's glamorized face early in the New Year.

An acre at the rear of the Coach House on the grounds of the Atlanta Art Assn. on Peachtree Street will be transformed into a fruit orchard by the club which voted unanimously to assume the job as a project.

Pear and apple trees will outline the area, according to Mrs. Francis Storza, club president, and work is scheduled to begin next month.

As far as is known, this orchard will be the first of its kind maintained by a local garden club and will also be the first fruit plot on the association grounds. The site is part of the old E. P. McBurney property now included in the Atlanta Art Assn. grounds. It extends to Lombardy Way.

With the establishment of this orchard, diners at the Coach House will be assured of a vista of beauty outside the huge picture window in the dining room.

The decision of the club to take on this project will mark another forward step in Atlanta's beauty path which the Iris gardeners first began in the spring of 1930 during the regime of Mrs. W. E. Harrington. It was at that time that they assumed maintenance of an unsightly gully in Ansley Park which they transformed into a beautiful garden now filled with many varieties of irises, shrubbery and a waterfall.

The garden is approximately two city blocks and is bordered by Peachtree circle, Westminster and Lafayette drives. The club won a national award for this project in a contest staged by a national magazine.

"We shall continue the upkeep of our garden in addition to the proposed orchard at the art association," said Mrs. Storza, now leader of the 30-member group which was organized in 1928 by Mrs. Bolling Sasnett.

An Apple Ring Adds to Turkey By Brightening

An apple ring garnish brightens your turkey.

Use large Washington state Rome Beauties, or winesaps, cored and sliced ½ inch thick. Make a syrup of 2 cups water and 2 cups sugar in large frying pan. Cook apple rings gently in syrup turning several times until tender. Drain and cool.

Fill center of each apple ring with mint jelly or cranberry sauce and arrange around turkey with green leaves or parsley.

Atlanta Found Guilty In 'Shine Ring Case

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 18 (AP)—An Atlanta man, a Dawsonville woman and a Chattanooga man were convicted in U.S. District Court here Wednesday on charges of conspiring to violate the internal revenue laws in the operation of a moonshine distillery.

Atlanta businessmen Carl Kimble Blackley and Claude Sterling Elisea, operator of a dining-dance pavilion near the site of the still at nearby Grayville, Tenn., were acquitted by the jury.

Guilty verdicts were returned against Dorsey Bannister, of Atlanta, labeled by federal prosecutors as "kingpin of one of the biggest moonshine whiskey rings in the South"; Lindon Lebron Sizemore, Chattanooga, and Miss Aline Ruby Anderson, Dawsonville, Ga. The latter two were called "small fry" in the Grayville operation.

The U.S. district attorney's office said Bannister lived at 578 Gary Rd., NW, Atlanta, and said Blackley owns the Blackley Pump and Electric Service at 232 Simpson St., NW, Atlanta.

Judge Robert L. Taylor of Knoxville, who heard the trial, ordered a probation officer to make a thorough pre-sentence investigation of the four defendants found guilty and reserved judgment. He ordered the bonds of Bannister and Thompson on increased, Bannister's from $1,000 to $3,000 and Thompson's from

Judge Leslie R. Darr of Chattanooga had excused himself because of personal acquaintance with the family of attorney O. Wendell McKenzie of Dayton, Tenn., who was among those charged with conspiracy. McKenzie was exonerated.

Wesley Asinof, Atlanta attorney who represented Bannister, Blackley and Miss Anderson, and three other attorneys appealed to Judge Taylor to reserve judgment until after the Christmas season.

"The Christmas season appeals to me as much as it does to anyone," assistant U.S. attorney James Meek argued. "But Mr. Bannister has an extremely bad record. This liquor syndicate of which Mr. Bannister is a member is one of the largest in the entire southeast."

Judge Taylor served notice on the defendants that they need not expect to be placed on probation. "There is no need to hold out the line for probation," Judge Taylor said. "I have heard enough. This was a large operation and I think the jury's verdict is a righteous one."

NATION'S WEATHER—NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Scattered showers are forecast for Thursday over the East coast except for the extreme Southeast, with some showers in the northern part of eastern Gulf states, the north and central Plains, and along the central Pacific coast. Showers or snow are likely throughout the Pacific northwest and the Rockies.

Huie Backs Tax Raise, If Needed

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Ald. Ralph Huie, chairman of the aldermanic board's finance committee, said Wednesday if a tax raise is needed next year to preserve services and Atlanta's sound fiscal policies he will sponsor it.

His statement followed a survey of city finances showing that the city will be $600,000 plus short of having funds to maintain services at their 1957 level without making any additions. He said this is due primarily to a drop in collections from various items, mostly non-tax entries.

"If there is any way to avoid a tax raise, I favor it," Huie said, "but if the city's sound financial operation is threatened, I will urge it."

Under existing charter amendments, the mayor and aldermanic board are free to set any tax rate they see fit. The rate for non-school operations for 1957 is 7.5 mills. However, when schools were made financially independent of the city, the limitation on the rate which could be levied for general city operations was voided.

"Unless the present outlook changes, it appears a tax rate increase will be needed," Huie added. "Taxes are the only source available to us in getting more money."

Escaped Pair Believed To Be Headed Here

Georgia officers late Wednesday were alerted for two prisoners who escaped from the Wilcox County Public Works Camp and reportedly headed for Atlanta in a stolen automobile.

They were listed as Jack Mullinax, 27, former Atlanta plumber, who on April 20 was sentenced to serve 3-4 years on burglary charges, and James Russell Gregory, 36, originally from Kentucky. Officers said Gregory also was serving a felony sentence.

Lt. M. M. Coppenger said Mullinax had a three-page police record in Atlanta for burglary and robbery. He added he was told the two fled Rochelle in a stolen 1956 model car.

Dr. Newton Heads Unit Of Baptists

The Georgia Baptist Foundation endowment committee has elected Dr. Louie D. Newton, Atlanta pastor, as chairman.

Dr. Newton succeeds Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, Athens, who retires this month after serving as chairman since 1948. Wilkinson was honored by the committee for his service to the Foundation.

An increase in capital gains of $400,000 during 1957 was revealed by Rev. Harry V. Smith, Sr., Foundation executive secretary. Total assets held by the foundation now amount to $2,805,545.98, Smith added.

It was also announced that all Georgia Baptist institutions have assets held by banks, trust companies and institutions for endowment purposes in excess of $8,500,000.

Smith was re-elected Foundation executive secretary, and W. A. Parker, Atlanta, was re-elected treasurer. Rev. Thomas J. Holmes, pastor of Atlanta's Northside Drive Baptist church was re-elected vice-chairman of the endowment committee.

L. L. Gellerstedt, retired Atlanta banker, was re-elected to an eighth term as chairman of the Foundation's board of trustees, and J. T. Holland, Thomasville, was elected vice-chairman of the trustees.

The Foundation, which was set up in 1941, serves as an investment agency for Georgia Baptist Convention institutions and agencies.

Friends Brighten Lot Of Fire-Struck Family

CALHOUN, Dec. 18—A tragedy that threatened to blacken the Christmas season for the Ernest Chanell family this week turned into a story with a happy ending.

The tragedy occurred when the family returned to their home-site Saturday night and found what had once been their house a pile of smoking embers. Everything the father, mother, and their five children owned, with the exception of what they wore, was gone.

But by Monday night, thanks to the generosity of Calhoun and Gordon County people, the family had another house and a tractor-trailer load of clothes, furniture, appliances, food—in fact everything they needed except a broom.

This came about after the family's plight was brought before the Mt. Zion Baptist Church congregation by the Rev. James Brady, pastor.

A committee, appointed by the church, began a canvass of Calhoun and the area Monday morning and by Monday afternoon they had filled a semi-trailer truck with gifts.

"We got almost everything that was needed before we got around all the merchants," Everett Defoor, a member of the committee, said. "Every merchant we contacted, except one, contributed."

Defoor said the family was overcome with joy at their new home with the truck, loaded with gifts, arrived at 5:30. "The Rev. Mr. Brady led the small group in prayer before the truck unloading began," he added.

Chanell is an employee at a Chenille mill here.

U.S. To Hand Farmers $7 Million Plus in '58

More than $7,500,000 will be given to Georgia farmers in 1958 for participation in federal conservation programs, John F. Bradley of the Georgia Stabilization and Conservation Committee said Wednesday.

The money will go to farmers who take part in the Soil Bank and in programs of land and livestock improvement and water conservation.

Georgia's allocation under the Agriculture Conservation Program for next year is $7,380,000. However, Bradley estimated payments will be pushed to more than $7,500,000 when special conservation claims are received.

Teen-Agers Transplant Yule Scenes

Sgt. Jack Cain of the Juvenile squad said five high school boys evidently were celebrating the first school holiday Wednesday by transplanting nativity scenes from the front yards in fashionable sections to the yards of poorer homes.

A resident in the Grant Park section observed the group posting a group of choral figures in the yard of his home and notified police. Cain said an automobile occupied by the youths was halted at Georgia and Cherokee avenues, SE.

NATIVITY FIGURES

Cain said he recovered an assortment of nativity figures.

The youths—all 16 years of age—insisted they found the figures in the street, Cain related. He added he later found the figures had been stolen from a fashionable section of DeKalb County.

ASKED WHY

Asked why they were setting up the scenes in south Atlanta, Cain said the youths replied:

"Some of the homes didn't have any Christmas decorations in the yards at all. They were pretty barren looking. We thought the folks would get a kick when they awoke to find a sparkling display set up in front."

Cain said he obtained the names and addresses of the five and would refer the cases to the DeKalb Juvenile Court.

(The names of accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with the Georgia Juvenile Court Law.)

Realty's Famed Zeckendorf to Talk To 2 Groups in Atlanta Today

William Zeckendorf, head of the New York real estate development firm, will make two talks here Thursday. His wizardry has left definite imprint on the Gotham skyline.

Zeckendorf, chairman of the Touro Synagogue Restoration Committee, will make a progress report to a local group at a 12:30 p.m. luncheon at the Progressive Club.

At 6:30 p.m., Zeckendorf will address the Georgia chapter of the American Institute of Architects at 6:30 p.m. at the Biltmore Hotel.

FESTIVE FRUIT CAKE

1/4 cup Pet Evaporated Milk
2 dozen marshmallows, finely cut
1/2 cup orange juice*
6 dozen 2 1/4-in. graham crackers
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 1/2 cups seedless raisins
(1/2 golden and 1/2 dark are best)
1/4 cup finely cut dates
1 cup broken walnuts
1 1/4 cups ready-mixed, cut-up candied fruit, bulk or canned

Line with waxed paper bottom and sides of a 9-inch tube pan, or 6-cup loaf pan. Put into a bowl the milk, marshmallows and orange juice. Let stand until needed. Roll graham crackers into fine crumbs. Put crumbs into a large bowl with the cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves, raisins, dates and walnuts. Add candied fruit and the milk mixture. Mix with a spoon, then with hands until crumbs are moistened. Press firmly into pan. Top with additional fruit and nuts. Cover tightly. Chill 2 days before slicing. Keep in cool place. Makes 3 1/2 lbs.

*Alcoholic flavoring can replace the orange juice if desired.

Boys Hunt Yule Money, Wind Up in City Jail

Two military academy students Wednesday were held in connection with the robbery of an Atlanta hotel manager who was left bound and gagged in his office, police said.

One, listed as John Leger, 17, of Warner, N.H., was held at city jail pending a hearing at 4 p.m. Thursday in Municipal Court on charges of disorderly conduct, robbery, Lt. R. F. Jordan and Det. Y. H. Allen said.

The second, 16 years of age, was turned over to Fulton juvenile authorities.

The names of the accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with the Georgia Juvenile Court law.

Morning watch Patrolman J. W. Moore said he apprehended the two at Spring and Williams Streets, NW, following a reported robbery at the Emory Hotel, 17 Baker St., NW. Moore said one youth reached for a .25 automatic in his pocket, but changed his mind when the officer drew his service revolver.

J. H. Kemp, manager of the hotel, was bound, gagged and robbed of $67, Moore related. He said Kemp later identified the two in a lineup at police headquarters.

Jordan and Allen said the youths, students at the Riverside Military Academy in Gainesville, were en route home for the Christmas holidays. They said the youths admitted stealing the automatic at the academy and then bought string and bandanas, used to bind and gag Kemp, in a 10-cent store.

One was quoted as saying his parents were separated and that his mother, a nurse, needed money. The other, police said, remarked: "All the boys talked about what they'd done and didn't get caught. We decided to get money for Christmas."

Cravey Seeks Power Over Gas Installations

Fire Commissioner Zack D. Cravey proposed Wednesday to extend his authority to natural gas installations and nursing homes.

Cravey, who is also comptroller general and insurance and small loans commissioner, outlined his proposals before an advisory board of the Georgia Safety Fire Commission.

A subcommittee of the board is expected to make recommendations along those lines to the forthcoming General Assembly.

Cravey said he has no jurisdiction over natural gas installations at present and only one man inspecting liquid petroleum gas installations.

He said his natural gas proposal stems from the recent death-dealing explosion at Villa Rica.

Cravey said private individuals should be encouraged to build new nursing homes so unsafe existing ones can be closed. He added, however, that not too many should be licensed.

Costs Jump At Training Institution

Costs of running the training school for white boys at Milledgeville have risen more than $100,000 during the last two years while the number of boys enrolled dropped slightly, records showed Wednesday.

The training school audit was one of four released Wednesday by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Junior.

Records showed most of the increase at the training school in the past two years has been in salaries—almost $50,000. About $55,000 more of the jump came in the supplies and materials account.

MORE EMPLOYEES
The number of employees at the training school has risen from 64 in 1955 to 80 in 1957.

A comparison of audits showed about $200 more per capita is spent at the training school than at the school for mental defectives at Gracewood.

Average annual per capita cost at Gracewood is $1,014.32 and at the training school $1,205.63. Two years ago the figures were nearly the same: $900.51 and $933.41 respectively.

Total expenditures at Gracewood in 1957 were $1,964,793.98 and $465,960.41 at the training school.

ENROLLMENT FIGURES
Average enrollment at the home for mental defectives was 939 and at the other institution 403.

An audit of the executive department reported an increase of more than $25,000 in 1957.

Gov. Marvin Griffin, the records showed, drew $14,400 in salary, $5,739 for committee and board memberships, $12,000 to run the governor's mansion and $4,615.63 automobile expenses.

The governor's brother, R. A. (Cheney) Griffin, drew $6,000 as an aide.

Another audit reported that $38,196.86 was spent last year to maintain eight veterans' widows at the Confederate Veterans Home. That was an increase of $122 per capita over last year. The same number of widows, eight, and the same number of attendants, 11, were on the rolls in 1957 as in 1956.

Arthur Fiedler Will Conduct 'Christmas Pops' Concerts Here

Arthur Fiedler, renowned conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, will guest-conduct "Christmas Pops" concerts with the Atlanta Symphony Thursday and Friday nights.

Included on the program each evening are an 18th century Christmas symphony by Schiassi, the prelude to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" and Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite."

Also on each program are the overture to Rossini's "Il Viaggio a Reims," Liszt's "Les Preludes" and Ravel's "Bolero." Fiedler conducted preliminary rehearsals with the Atlanta Symphony Friday, flew to Chicago Monday and resumed his Atlanta rehearsals Wednesday. The concerts will be held at the Tower Theater at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday Last Day to Pay Taxes

Midnight Thursday is the deadline for payment of 1957 Fulton County taxes without penalties, Tax Commissioner Standish Thompson warned Wednesday.

Thompson explained that Dec. 19 is the official date after which a charge for fl. fa. costs, 7 per cent interest and sheriff's fees may be added to the bills of delinquent taxpayers.

The fl. fa. charge is $1.50 for amounts of $100 or less and $3.50 on bills over $100.

Payments for 1957 county taxes may be made in person at the courthouse annex or may be mailed, however, those mailed should be postmarked by midnight Thursday to avoid the penalty, Thompson said.

Meanwhile, Thompson explained that collections are ahead of last year both on a percentage basis and in terms of dollars. A total of $13,814,868.55 has come in so far, amounting of 95.22 per cent of the tax digest. Figures for Dec. 12 last year were $13,044,066.17 or 95.14 per cent of the digest.

Italian Village Slides into Lake

ROME, Dec. 18 (UP)—An entire northern Italian village was crumbling into Lake Garda today.

Earthslides, caused by heavy rain, undermined the 20 houses and public buildings of the hamlet of Musio.

The first houses started collapsing Sunday. The church and school went down yesterday.

Today the whole village was sliding into the lake. But all residents were evacuated and there were no casualties.

Big Night at Big Dome

Coach Whack Hyder sat in his office adjacent to the Big Dome, where Tech will entertain Georgia Thursday night, and agreed with Red Lawson on two points. He seconds the motions recently made by the Georgia coach that the Bulldogs have their finest team in seven years, and Kentucky is again the kingpin of the conference.

Neither statement, of course, is startling. Adolph Rupp usually rules the roost in the SEC, and the Wildcats again appear superior to the rest of the family. In three outings thus far, the Bulldogs have indicated they'll be able to slug it out with most of the teams on the menu.

Neither coach would venture a prediction on the outcome of the Thursday night tussle, other than to say it should be a typical Tech-Georgia fracas.

Outlar

from a stack of papers on his desk, "and they'll be tough. I scouted them against South Carolina, and they convinced me that this is the best Georgia team in seven years."

"You know when we scheduled this game, Red and I thought we were pulling a fast one. I knew that Dave Denton would be eligible on the 14th, so when Red suggested we play on the 19th that suited me fine. I didn't know that Ensley would become eligible on the 18th. Those boys, of course, will help both teams."

"I was pleased with Denton in his first game against Baylor Monday night. He's a fine basketball player, and so is Ensley."

—Scratch 'Cats and You'll Have a Scramble

The engagement with Georgia will be Tech's sixth contest of the year. The Jackets have knocked off Davidson, Alabama and Baylor and lost to South Carolina and Texas Tech.

"What's my reaction to our performance thus far?" Hyder repeated the question and reached for a file. "We've played just about the brand of ball I expected us to play, but our shooting has been off."

He pointed to a page of statistics and continued, "We've controlled the boards against every team except South Carolina, but we just haven't been hitting. Blemker and Randall are our leading scorers, but injuries have hampered Gary Phillips. Denton, as I said, will help us plenty, so I think we'll improve."

Hyder wants to clarify a recent quote about Kentucky. He said that the Wildcats, due to a shortage of height, could be had this year. Maryland and Southern Methodist have since made Whack look like an expert.

"I think perhaps I was misunderstood when the quote was repeated over the air," Hyder explained. "I still don't think Kentucky is quite up to par, but I certainly didn't mean to imply that Kentucky isn't a fine basketball team. We might as well face it. They're the best in our league."

"Now you take Kentucky out, and four or five teams could win it. There's going to be a real scramble. Auburn, Miss. State, Vandy and Tennessee are all in the race."

Later, in the Big Dome, Lawson watched his Bulldogs work out and added Tech to the list. "And don't think we aren't watching out for them," Red said with a chuckle.

—Bulldogs Enjoying Rarified Atmosphere

Always a man to identify a spade, Lawson explained why he's optimistic about his Bulldogs. For a change, Georgia has experience and depth.

In previous years, Lawson has often found it difficult to round up five starters. Now he has eight "first stringers." In Henry Cabaniss, Sonny Poss and Ensley the Bulldogs have excellent rebound men. Fred Franks, Earl Tidwell, Ray Allen, Don Hartsfield and Fred Edmondson are other boys Lawson likes to talk about.

At this infant stage of the campaign, Allen looks as though he'll fulfill his vast potential. He has been a good basketball player, but until now he has never lived up to the vast reputation he brought from Richmond Academy to Athens. He's averaged 20 points in Georgia's first three encounters, and has been a nifty defensive performer.

Though Georgia's residence atop the SEC standings is likely to be brief, Lawson is enjoying the rarified atmosphere. "It's great to be leading the league," Red said "and you know we have a lease on first place until January."

By virtue of their victory over Florida, Georgia assumed first place in the SEC race. No other teams play a league game until January. Thursday's scuffle with Tech doesn't go in the official records. Under the zany SEC system, only the last of the three games between the state rivals count in the championship standings.

But you don't need a record book to provide incentive for Tech and Georgia. When these intense rivals clash, it always counts plenty.

'Little Men' to Spotlight Court Battle at Big Dome

By AL THOMY

Georgia and Georgia Tech are expected to reverse the "inside scoring punch" theory when they exchange baskets at the Big Dome Thursday night, tipoff 8 p.m.

This has been tabbed a duel of the guards, the comparatively little men of basketball who in recent years have been lost behind the long reach of giants.

The little men are back, and Tech and Georgia have them. Check the scoring columns of the two ancient rivals.

First, for Tech. Backcourt operators Bud Blemker and Terry Randall, both two inches under six feet, have provided the punch in five games. Each has 67 points for a 13.4 average.

Then, Georgia. Classy Ray Allen, only city slicker on a team of smalltown operators, "lowers" up to 6-2. The Augusta sharpshooter has dropped in an average of 20 points per game in two victories and a loss for Red Lawson's charges. Cohort Fred Edmondson has found the nets on an average of 15.3 in the three games.

South Carolina coach Fred Johnson, who holds a decision over both clubs, this week refused to concede an advantage to either in the backcourt. "I'd rate them on a par with each other," he said. Tech coach Whack Hyder expands that analysis to the entire squads of both schools.

"It's an even contest," he said Wednesday night. "Either team can win it. I'm hoping we'll have an advantage on our home court."

Randall, who has been assigned the task of stopping Allen, calls his opponent "shifty and speedy." The two have met before. Blemker and Edmondson will pair off at the tipoff.

The battle of the guards does not mean the others will just be standing around waiting for a rebound to conk them on the head.

Forwards Cary Phillips and Jim Johnson of the Techs have had their shining hours this season, Johnson especially in the Baylor game when he came through with clutch shots. And Frank Inman, who is in the double figures, is a rugged man under the boards.

Lawson's front line blankets the area under the baskets, with Sonny Poss and Henry Cabaniss, the top men on rebounding. Cabaniss is also a proficient scorer, with a 16-point average. He stands 6-5 and throws 205 pounds into the effort.

Both teams come fortified for the non-conference game.

Bill Ensley, remembered as the 6-5 scrapper who set a Georgia rebound record with 25 in the Tech game two seasons back, plays in his first game since dropping out of school last year. He brings defensive strength.

Pompey, Hinnart Deadlock

CHICAGO, Dec. 18 (AP)—Sixth-ranked Yolande Pompey of Trinidad and seventh-rated Clarence Hinnart of Miami fought to a rugged 10-round draw in a televised 10-round light-heavyweight bout at the Chicago Stadium tonight.

It was a brutal fight from start to finish, even though there were no knockdowns. Referee Bernie Weissman voted for Pompey, 47 to 46; judge Lou Capparelli voted for Hinnart, 46-45; while the other judge, Harold Marovitz, called it even, 47-47. The AP saw it for Pompey, 47-45.

The bout was scored under the five-point must system with five points to a round winner and any lesser number to a round loser.

Pompey weighed 166½ pounds and Hinnart 171½.

Both fighters were trading bombs every round, but neither ever was in serious trouble.

Two More Aides Leaving A&M With the Bear

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Dec. 18 (AP)—Two more members of the coaching staff at Texas A&M today were added to the University of Alabama staff by Paul (Bear) Bryant, new Crimson Tide coach.

Bryant announced that Sam Bailey and Elmer Smith will go to Alabama as assistant coaches.

Bailey will work with the backs. He played with both Arkansas State and at Ouachita College, also in Arkansas. He was an assistant coach at Arkansas from 1950 through 1955, and was a member of Bryant's Aggie staff in 1956-57.

Terry Says Sally Going With 6 Clubs

League Won't Try To Fill

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 18 (AP)—South Atlantic League President Bill Terry said today he would seek no replacement for Columbus which announced it would not operate in the Class A baseball circuit next season.

Terry told newsmen as far as he was concerned the Columbus development meant the South Atlantic would be a six-team league. The teams left are Macon, Savannah, Augusta, Knoxville, Charlotte and Jacksonville.

In an announcement Tuesday night, John Christofferson, president of the Columbus Baseball Club, Inc., said it is doubtful his organization will operate at all. But he did not close the door to another group taking over.

The decision was brought on, he added, from lack of a working agreement as well as financial losses the past two seasons with working agreements.

Christofferson said bond posted with the National Assn. of Minor Leagues will be maintained to protect the territory.

Last season, the Columbus Foxes finished fourth and drew only 60,000 fans in a working agreement with St. Louis.

The Sally originally had planned to operate with eight clubs in 1958. Columbia, S.C., withdrew earlier and Terry said the Columbus decision virtually eliminated Charleston, S.C., as a replacement for that club. Charleston has no working agreement with a major league club.

Terry said the six clubs will play a 140-game schedule in 1958 instead of 154 as last season.

Evy Moving To Aggies? He Won't Say

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Dec. 18 (AP)—Forest Evashevski, Iowa head football coach, said "don't count it out" when asked if he might take a similar coaching job at Texas A&M.

Evy would neither confirm nor deny whether he had been contacted by officials of the Texas school. He made his remarks while in the quad-cities for a speaking engagement Tuesday night.

Wellborn Goes Home to Rice —To Talk Up His Navy Team

Wyatt, Bryant
'Movie Fans'

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 18 (AP)—Ray Wellborn, Navy fullback who will be playing his former Rice teammates in the Cotton Bowl game Jan. 1, is flying home Thursday to a warm reception in the enemy camp.

Naval Academy alumni have arranged plane transportation for Wellborn to arrive in Houston at 8:55 a.m. They have lined up a day of activity for him, including a talk to the Naval ROTC unit at Rice, of which he was a member before entering the Academy in 1955.

In the Cotton Bowl, he'll be opposing some of the same Rice gridders with whom he played freshman football.

Wellborn, whose home is in Houston, transferred to the Academy after watching Navy's football team defeat Ole Miss, 21-0, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans Jan. 1, 1955.

Navy's football team cut short practice and headed home on Christmas leave Wednesday.

'Line' Ups

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Texas A&M, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Ohio State were listed as favorites in post-season football bowl games. Here is the "line" circulated today on Broadway:

DEC. 25—Gator Bowl—Texas A&M favored by 6 over Tennessee, Blue-Gray—Gray favored by 6 over Blue, East-West—East favored by 10 over West.

JAN. 1: Cotton Bowl—Navy-Rice even, Sugar Bowl—Mississippi favored by 3 over Texas, Sun Bowl—Louisville favored by 7 over Drake, Tangerine Bowl—Mississippi Southern favored by 7 over East Texas State, Orange Bowl—Oklahoma favored by 13 over Duke, Rose Bowl—Ohio State favored by 19 over Oregon.

28. Coach Bowden Wyatt and Aggie coach Paul (Bear) Bryant traded films of four games to study in preparing their teams, and they'll be doing just that. The Vols plan to leave Christmas Eve.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — Texas A&M went through a brisk 50-minute workout and cleared decks for its final scrimmage Thursday in preparation for the Gator Bowl. Junior end Don UNIVERSITY, Miss.—Billy Lott, Mississippi's first string right halfback out of action since Nov. 16 with a broken collarbone, received doctor's permission to play in the Sugar Bowl game against Texas. He returned to his post in the first backfield.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 18 (AP)—Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech sent his South squad through an hour and 20-minute workout their first for the Shrine All-Star football game in the Orange Bowl Christmas night.

"This is a fine bunch of all-stars," Dodd said. "All of them look lean and eager to play. We're not going to give them too much to learn at one time. When they master one play, we'll give them another."

Jay Donathan of Arkansas worked on the "first team" ahead of Don Stephenson, the star center from Georgia Tech.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18 (AP)—Twenty-two North All-Stars breezed through a 90-minute drill.

"These boys have tremendous spirit, even for this late in the year," said Coach Hugh Daugherty of Michigan State, who directed the practice. "They like to play football."

BERSERK RACE HORSE DESTROYED ON PLANE

SHANNON, Ireland, Dec. 18 (AP)—Pan American Airways disclosed tonight a $9,000 thoroughbred horse had to be shot dead high over the Atlantic because it was trying to kick out the side of a cargo plane flying it to New York.

The Italian-bred yearling colt named Rookwoods had been due to reach New York Sunday in the plane that also had nine persons aboard and eight other horses.

Rookwoods broke the tethering device used in horse cargo flights to keep horses from damaging themselves and the plane.

It then began battering into the side of the pressurized cabin, endangering the lives of the persons aboard, a Pan American spokesman said.

The decision to shoot the horse was made by the pilot, Capt. Ed Mulholland, in consultation with the grooms who accompanied the horses bound from London to New York.

The incident occurred about 500 miles off the Irish coast. Pan American said the mishap was the first of its kind since transatlantic air shipment of horses began in 1946.

THE REAL DECOY CARSON CALLS 1957 SEASON HIS BEST

By BERT PRATHER
Long John Carson's professional football career with the Washington Redskins will continue at least one more season.

The former University of Georgia All-America end, who returned here with his family after completing his best year in the National pro loop, said, "As long as Mr. George Marshall (Redskins' prexy) keeps changing those salary figures on my contract, I'll just have to go back."

And though John hasn't formally signed his 1958 pact, "Mr. Marshall liked the way I played this year, and we have a pretty good understanding about that salary boost next year," Johnny allowed.

"Yes, I believe this year was my best overall in pro ball. The coaches and players all thought so, too. True, I didn't catch as many passes late in the season, but there's a story behind that. Since I was standing second in the league in pass receiving, the other teams starting double and triple-teaming me. As a result I was used mostly as a decoy receiver during the last six games and you'll recall, if you watched us on TV, that quarterback Eddie LeBaron was throwing to our halfbacks with quite a bit of success.

"Sure I would like to catch

JOHN CARSON
Decoy Knocked 'Em Dead

those passes, but if I can pull two or three defenders away with me, it leaves some of the other boys open. And after all, we're up there to win football games not individual glory.

"I know my blocking was much improved this year, too. I was sure pleased to be picked on the Eastern Division All-Star team by rival coaches and thus get my first shot in the big Pro-Bowl game at Los Angeles Jan. 12," Carson said.

Five of Carson's Washington teammates were named to the bowl team also. They are LeBaron, halfback Jim Podoley, middle linebacker Chuck Drazenovich, defensive end Gene Brito, and offensive guard Richard Stanfel, the latter one of the greatest blockers in the business in the opinion of Carson.

Members of winning team in the L.A. classic collect $700 for their trouble, while the losing members receive $500 each. Buddy Parker of the Pittsburgh Steelers is coach of the East squad.

Johnny also had an answer for Washington's fine finish after a shaky start. "We started the season with 11 rookies, that should be some sort of a league record. Usually a team won't have over two or three positions at the most to open up for rookies. Why in our games we had four rookies playing on the offensive unit and three on defense.

"It was just a matter of these boys getting the experience. We jelled late in the season and really played fine ball. In fact, we didn't play an uninteresting game all season as far as spectators were concerned.

"But you know we really hit the jackpot with those rookies. Don Bosseler (Miami) came through great at fullback. He's going to be one of the best in the business. We all thought he should have made the all-star squad. Then, of course, there was Podoley (Central Michigan) and Ed Sutton (North Carolina) at offensive halfbacks.

They played fine ball, too, and should be even better next year.

"Our other fine rookies were defensive tackles Ed Khayat (Tulane), Will Runtz (Memphis State), Don Owens (Miss. Southern), offensive tackle Ray Lemek (Notre Dame), offensive and defensive linebacker Tom Braatz (Marquette), offensive and defensive end Joe Walton (Pitt) defensive end Bob Dee (Holy Cross) and offensive guard Ed Voyet (Purdue). They'll all be more experienced next year. And, by the way, I think we'll be a contender from the start," Carson said.

Johnny also revealed that former Georgia Tech guard Bill Fulcher of Augusta, plans to come back next season. Bill joined the Redskins for the final two games to man his old line-backer post after serving as assistant coach at Richmond Academy.

"Bill was my roommate the last two weeks. He told me the reason he stayed out this year

Wilt the Stilt Not The Best—Enright

Tipoff Speaker Likes Russell;
Chamberlain Delays Pro Debut

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Wilt Chamberlain, the stilted phenom from Kansas, (1) won't gobble the professional bait until his collegiate eligibility has ended and (2) isn't necessarily the hottest thing that ever bounced a basketball.

That's the opinion of Chicagoan Jim Enright, Atlanta Tipoff Club's featured speaker Wednesday night at the Progressive Club.

Who's he?

Enright is one of the nation's foremost cage officials, a whistle tooter from San Francisco to Sea Island since 1933. And he's written sports for the Chicago American since 1937.

"No, I couldn't say," he said, "that Chamberlain is the best player I've ever seen. He's not even the best I've seen in recent years.

"That would be San Francisco's—and now Boston's—Bill Russell. He has the all-round game, and there's not a flaw anywhere in his play.

"Chamberlain is better offensively, but Russell more than makes up the difference with his defensive ability. And Bill's offensive potential still hasn't been tapped."

Enright has worked practically every major collegiate tourney. That includes seven NCAA play-offs, the Dixie Classic and numerous others. He'll officiate at Lexington, Ky., this weekend in the tournament of titans.

The gravel-voiced guest from the Midwest predicts Chamberlain's Jayhawking job will run its course for two reasons.

(2) Abe Saperstein, Harlem Globe-Trotter boss who's first in line with Chamberlain's lunch-money, won't risk the adverse criticism by signing the seven-footer before his book-toting days are over.

"In my work," he said, "I've come in contact with Chamberlain numerous times the last two years, talked to him and am convinced he won't sign a professional contract until after the 1960 Olympics.

"And, of course, Abe is a personal friend of mine. We both are from Chicago. He says he won't touch Wilt until after college."

IF ANGLERS THINK THEY GET ULCERS, THEY OUGHTA SEE FISH

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

We were cruising around Burton Lake—Bill Street and I—throwing odd items of hardware (classified more definitely as sporting goods) into some of the likely spots, when Billy suggested that we pay Jack Hogg and his island a visit. We swung up the lake, went ashore and were warming our frost-bitten fingers over his campfire when Jack came in, lugging a trout. It was a highly colored brown, about two feet long and slender for a fish that size.

"You keeping trout now?" I asked.

"Something's wrong with this one," Jack said. "He didn't fight very hard and when I started to put him back, I noticed that his throat was raw, like he had a case of this

Charles Elliott

Asian flu that's been going around. So I thought I'd have him diagnosed."

Bill allowed that was pretty drastic treatment for a patient, but when Jack opened the mouth of the trout and showed its throat, all swollen and dotted with purplish bumps, we agreed that the brown should have medical attention, even though he was already beyond needing it.

Fred Dickson, who handles fisheries affairs for the Game and Fish Commission, sent the Burton brown trout off for study, and a couple of days ago the report came back. The poor fish had several things with high-sounding technical names wrong with it, and one of them was a good, old-fashioned case of the ulcers.

That didn't surprise me too much. With Jack and his gang, with Moody and Jimmy and little Jimmy Bell, with Hamp Brown, Buddy Haskin and half a hundred other precision fishermen I could name, hot on their anal fins each bright, sunny day of the year (and most of the rainy ones, too), it's a wonder that every fish in Burton Lake is not afflicted with the ulcers. I've contributed my share of scaring the underwater citizens of Burton Lake half out of their wits by bumping their noses with the screwiest sort of divers, wobblers, wigglers, creepers and crawlers, peddled by some super salesman as magic lures no fish can resist.

Pause to turn it gently over in your mind and you'll agree that any bass or trout must be endowed with tremendous strength of character and poise, not to keep a constant case of nervous indigestion or jumpy jitters.

Put yourself in his place. You are relaxed in the cool, dark depths off a sunken point, resting with your stomach on the sand. It's not feeding time, so you are probably enjoying a semi-siesta and think about that plump little number with the curly fins who lives half a mile down the lake, and that you'll visit her, come spring. Suddenly you hear a jarring, grinding noise, and a weird creature unlike anything you've ever seen, hoves into view, staggering along the bottom, bumping into trees, stones and stumps. Darting, wiggling, leaping—it comes straight toward you. If you don't hit back in self defense, you'll probably stir a little mud yourself, ducking for the safety of deep water.

What's really amazing is that each fish doesn't have a bad attack of ulcers from the moment it is spawned. Every creature around the water, stalks it. The herons that wade, the kingfisher and osprey hanging in the air above, larger fish—even in the very same school, turtles, alligators, water dogs, minks, snakes—any one of a hundred creatures are ready to make a choice morsel out of it even when its life has hardly begun. And when he's barely large enough for a healthy bite between a slice of bread, man joins in the chase, as one of the chief tormentors.

Note to Floyd McRae: How do you treat a trout for ulcers?

Kentucky Invitational Boasts 4 of Nation's Top 10 Quints

Tourney Pits 3 Unbeatens

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 18 (AP)—Four basketball powers among the nation's top 10 face stern tests this weekend in the University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament that figures to shatter dreams of would-be kings.

The line-ups match three unbeatens—North Carolina, Minnesota and West Virginia—plus Kentucky's twice-licked Wildcats.

The pairings make it a certainty that two of the undefeated will tumble and, if host Kentucky should win its own tournament, a third will suffer its first defeat. Then, a reshuffling of ratings could come out of the two-night classics.

The four entrants own a combined record of 17 wins, two losses.

Defending national champ

Tar Heels Favored

North Carolina, again ranked first in the Associated Press poll, opens play Friday night against unbeaten Minnesota, No. 10 in this week's ratings.

West Virginia, No. 8 nationally, follows with its test against Kentucky, now No. 5.

The losers play for third place Saturday night before the winners battle for the title.

North Carolina rules the choice in this star-studded event which figures to draw top attendance and possibly a new high payoff for the participants.

Minnesota and North Carolina were due in town tonight with West Virginia coming in Thursday for final tuneups.

North Carolina won 32 straight last year through the NCAA finals and the veteran Tar Heels have added four more this time, disposing of Clemson, George Washington, Furman and South Carolina in a string of 36 without a loss.

Minnesota has whipped Southern Methodist, Iowa State and Vanderbilt for a 3-0 record after compiling a 14-8 season a year ago.

West Virginia, 25-5 last year, has a six-game streak this time with wins over Virginia Military, Furman, Penn State, William and Mary, Washington and Lee and Richmond.

Kentucky was 23-5 last year and has most of its old team intact. The Wildcats have beaten Temple, Ohio State, Duke and St. Louis while losing to sixth-ranked Maryland and Southern Methodist.

Kentucky has won three of its four previous tournaments, beating La Salle in 1953 and 1954, losing to Dayton in 1955 and downing Illinois last year.

Eckman Out at Detroit

DETROIT, Dec. 18 (AP)—The forced resignation today of Coach Charley Eckman points up the woes that have beset the game-dropping, money-losing, injury-riddled Pistons since their National Basketball Assn. franchise was switched to Detroit from Fort Wayne, Ind., after the 1956-57 season.

The 36-year-old Eckman, an energetic, cigar-chewing little guy who talks a mile a minute, said he would be paid to June 1959 on a $12,500-a-year contract running through the 1959-60 season.

"Resignation is a nice way to put it," Eckman told newsmen at his Glen Burnie, Md., home. "We weren't winning. That's all there is to it."

Cards' McDaniel Boys Get Pay Hikes in '58

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 18 (AP)—Bing Devine, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced today that both of the Cards' $50,000 bonus brothers, pitchers Lindy and Von McDaniel, have been signed to 1958 contracts.

He said they each got raises but did not disclose them. Last year Von made about $6,500 and Lindy was paid between $8,000 and $9,000. Both boys were at their farm home where Lindy has been helping with the work and Von was spending the Christmas holidays from Abilene, Tex., Christian College.

Devine said both were in excellent health and had not gained weight since the season ended.

Von will report to the Cardinals' early camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 10 and Lindy will be there a few days later.

This season Lindy tied with Larry Jackson for the team's best pitching record, 15-9. Von had a 7-5 record.

The Cardinals so far have signed 12 players for the 1958 season.

NCAA Looks for Violations

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 18 (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. committee on infractions opens a regular two-day meeting here tomorrow, NCAA executive director Walter Byers announced.

Byers declined to say what cases will be considered, explaining that under NCAA procedure all are treated confidentially until a formal report is made.

The committee is composed of N. M. McKnight, Columbia University; George H. Young, University of Wisconsin, and A. D. Kirwan, University of Kentucky.

The NCAA committee usually spends considerable time delving into recruiting violations. While no schools were singled out by the group, this particular violation is expected to pop up again.

Jackets' Williams SI Business A-A

End Played For Alexander

By BERT PRATHER

Albert Sydney Williams, end on Georgia Tech's 1932 football team, probably never dreamed that 25 years later he'd be picked on an all-America team.

But that's just what happened to Syd, who was reared in Bethesda Orphans' Home (Savannah) from age of six and came to Tech on a football grant-in-aid to play under the late coach Bill Alexander during Tech's lean football years of 1929-32. Syd was injured and did not play in '31.

Tech's record during Williams' three varsity seasons was 13-6-0, 2-6-1 and 4-5-1. So, it can easily be seen that no one was making all-American teams around the Flats in those days.

However, Syd's name is on the 25-man roster of the 1957 Silver Anniversary All-America selected by Sports Illustrated from a list of successful business and professional men (who were senior football players 25 years ago) by their alma maters.

Members of this team were chosen by a panel of distinguished judges for outstanding career and community service records since their departure from the gridiron. Syd is now regional manager of Coca-Cola Export Corp.'s United Kingdom Region with headquarters in London.

At Georgia Tech, Syd and his lightweight mates on the '32 team were called by Coach Alexander "not the strongest, but the fightingest team" he'd ever coached. The team, because of its size and determination, was called "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

In school, Syd was an outstanding student leader as well as football star. He was president of Interfraternity Council his senior year and a member for three years, member of

SYD WILLIAMS
All-American Now

Student Council for three years, vice president of ANAK and Omicron Delta Kappa and president of the Bulldog Club in addition to holding class offices for four years. He was president of Georgia Tech's All-Saints Bible Class.

Syd graduated in 1933 with a B.S. degree in General Science.

After graduating from Tech Williams joined the A. L. Zachry clothing store here where he worked until 1935. He joined the Coca-Cola Export Corp., Jan. 1, 1936, and has been with them since, except 1944-45 when he served as technical observer attached to U.S. Army in Brazil.

The old Tech star has four children. His oldest daughter, Edythe, 18, is a freshman at University of Georgia. Another daughter, Julia, 15, and sons Sydney Jr., 10, and James Edward, 8, attend schools in England.

Since graduating from Tech, Williams has spent only six years in the United States.

Tom P. Henderson Jr., former Vanderbilt player, now an insurance executive in Nashville, is the only other former Southeastern Conference player among the honorees.

All players will receive silver goal post trophies from SI.

Ray Beck Calls It Quits As Pro Football Player

Only Seconds Turned 1956 Champions Into Also-Rans In '57, Say Giant Star

Why did the New York Giants fail to repeat as champions of the National Football League?

This question was tendered very cautiously, even though by telephone, Wednesday to 225-pound Giant offensive guard Ray Beck, now back home at Cedarhurst.

"No, I don't mind being asked," Beck said. Maybe disappointment in failure to repeat was lost Wednesday while the former Georgia Tech All-American was having a successful day dove hunting.

"We had the same personnel with the exception of Roosevelt Grier (who is in the Army). The personnel was good, the coaching was good."

"But, injuries hurt us some. Ken McAfee, Gene Filipski and Alex Webster all missed some time because of flu. And tackle Dick Yellington (a former Georgia lineman) missed five games with a knee injury."

"Ed Hughes, a defensive half-back, missed some time with a broken arm."

"But", said Beck, "you can't attribute it all to injuries. You've got to have a lot of luck to win two years in a row."

"You know we looked at movies of last year's game, and compared 'em with this year, and we could see where we were losing games by a fraction of a second. Just that much time lost in blocking on key plays cost us some games. We weren't as keyed up, maybe, as last year."

"Then you know everybody was pointing for us this year. Last year we seemed to get all the breaks, and this year they seemed to go the other way."

"We fumbled seven times in one game and lost six of them. Our defense wasn't nearly as good. The pressure kept piling up on us and we weren't relaxed. Then after we were out of it last week, and felt like we were relaxed, Cleveland beat us."

"It's pretty hard to say just what it was," Beck said, "but I will say it takes a lot of luck to win that championship."

And what about next year? "Now, I don't want people to think I'm going to make this an annual thing like a lot of guys, but I'm honestly going to quit," Beck said. "I'll have to devote full time to the freight business here."

But, the caller offered, a year can give a guy time enough to change his mind, don't you think? The now retired Beck was in complete agreement. It happened last year.—CARSON.

Billy Graham
Acquire Peace of Spirit—
That's Best Tranquilizer

QUESTION: I recently noticed that each year Americans millions of dollars on tranquilizing drugs. Don't you think there is something wrong when we turn to such means to quiet our restless minds?

ANSWER: Such a solution to life's problems is strictly a temporary measure and not a solution at all. With the increasing tension of our times, it is not to be wondered at that such methods are used to bring about a quiet and relaxed state of mind. Also, it must be remembered that all problems are not mental or spiritual, and medical science can well be called upon in such cases where the trouble is functional or organic.

But for the majority, the tranquilizing pill is an artificial escape from reality and might well be associated with narcotics for their effect upon the individual. No problem is solved, but the individual escapes from the problem temporarily. If those who have such tension and are possessed with complexes would find spiritual peace, they would have a far more satisfying answer. Most of our ailments are warnings of some deep seated wrong. You do wrong then to silence the alarm and not find the real cure. Let the peace of God possess your life, and you will have a permanent answer in the problem of your tensions and complexes. Christ said: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden." The Bible promises: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee."

Keep Well
Food Is Never a Medicine
—Enjoy Your Good Meals

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

H. N. writes: "My wife and I are sorry we did not begin reading your column sooner. Since starting six months ago, we have changed our eating and health habits almost completely from the information you have given us and the ideas you suggest about better living. Is there any advantage in beginning to eat right at our ages (my wife is 21 and I'm 27) or is it too late?"

It's never too late. But there is more to health than proper eating habits. A nourishing diet helps and when the menus are well balanced, there is no need to be concerned about a lack of this or that.

Eat sensibly, enjoy your meals, and don't consider food a medicine. In addition, follow the rules of good health.

A New Yorker wrote: "My husband is one of those unfortunate who has suffered from migraine headaches for more than 25 years. Some time ago I read your answer to a problem in reference to this disease. How I wished you had mentioned ergotamine injections. Two weeks ago, in the midst of an attack, I called a physician to give him such an injection. It was a miracle to see him recover within an hour and a half. Perhaps you can write another column so that other sufferers may try this remedy."

I have been writing on migraine for many years and have mentioned the use of ergotamine—the last time in May of this year. In my last article on the subject I concentrated on the newer developments in this disease, including the cause and description of other types of headaches that formerly were mistaken for migraine.

I rarely omit a word or two on treatment and usually mention caffeine, a combination of caffeine and ergotamine.

Lighter Quiz Shows Proving Successful

By PAUL JONES

Quiz shows can be fun—if you, at home, can participate.

Some of the big questions and answers shows have run out of steam because they failed to involve the home audience in their games.

The big brain-trust type quizzes which get quiz questions out of the encyclopedia long ago ceased to be fun for the viewer, because, first of all, the folks at home didn't win any of the money. And second, they soon became bored with the difficult questions which they never seemed able to answer.

But, TV currently has two quiz shows going which are real fun. They are light, bright and they involve the people at home. The televisioner can't win the prizes, but he can have a ball matching wits with the contestants.

These are The Price Is Right and To Tell the Truth. Both of these programs are imaginative, fast and suspenseful.

To Tell the Truth has a panel and groups of three contestants. The contestants all assume the identity of one of their number. The panel is charged with trying to determine which of the three contestants is the real person. Only the actual person is obliged to tell the truth.

This game is fun because the televisioner doesn't know who the actual person is. Families can play the game along with the panel. Each member of the family can cast his vote as to who is the actual person.

The Price Is Right features a panel of contestants who attempt to guess the correct retail price of a number of valuable objects. The person coming closest to the correct price gets the item. Again, the home viewers can compete. They don't win the prizes, but they can engage in a little game with each member of the family bidding.

This is the type entertainment that TV does best. Let's have more shows like The Price Is Right and To Tell the Truth.

HERE ARE SOME TIPS for Christmas music. WSB-Radio daily will feature Music Time Christmas from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., Christmas music for Housewives Corner, 1:05 p.m. to 2 p.m. and on Sunday, Christmas Festival in Hi-Fi with Paul McClay and Jimmy Dunningway.

Christmas music on radio makes a pleasant background for wrapping Christmas packages or addressing Christmas cards, says Elmo Ellis, program director of WSB-Radio.

MRS. C. B. KITCHENS, of S. Lockbridge, writes:

"It was weeks before Christmas, When I came to town To see Mr. Jones Where could he be found? 'To The Constitution building I quickly came My hat hanging low, My spirits the same 'What to my wondering years Should appear, but Mr. Jones coming from the door In the rear.

"He's a wonderful man With his charm and wit; I talked and I talked, I just couldn't quit. 'He promised to write about My program next day; With a heart full of Joy I was on my way. 'I rushed to the door, The paper to find; I looked, but alas About me, not a line. 'Just a last few lines As I go on my way, Merry Christmas to you, Happy New Year's Day."

MRS. H. E. BARMORE, of Atlanta, writes: "I would like to comment on the horrible Hit Parade. I used to enjoy it but since the new singers (could they in all seriousness be called singers) have been on the show I avoid it when I can. I definitely don't want pay TV in any form."

BRITISH ACTRESS—Sylvia Marriott plays a leading role in "The Case of the Smiling Widow," detective drama which focuses on the world of art, on Scotland Yard, Sunday night on ABC-TV. The British star is cast as the wife of an art dealer in whose home an almost-perfect murder takes place.

Yule Cheer To Be Offered
In 'Miracle on 34th Street'

PAUL JONES' PICK OF THE DAY—One of the best movies ever made will be shown on television Thursday night. "Miracle on 34th Street," a timely story of an old man, convinced that he is Santa Claus, will be presented on the Starlight Movies show. This story tells how the old man spreads Yuletide spirit through New York department stores. But, one day, he is hailed into court by some people who think he's off his rocker. He is forced to prove there really is a Santa Claus.

Look in on this little bit of magic and see if it doesn't make your Christmas season a little brighter. It starts at 11:05 p.m.

Recovery Fades, Closed Mixed

Steels, Motors, Aircrafts
Lead Early Market Boost

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (U.S.)—A smart recovery drive faded on late selling today and the stock market closed mixed.

A snap-back from the past two sessions of gloomy selling put the market well ahead in the morning but gains melted away in the afternoon.

Steels, motors and aircrafts paced the early upsurge when buying was so eager that the ticker tape fell behind for three minutes.

The late afternoon was so severe that once shares of the leading steelmakers hit new lows for the year as did key issues in other sections of the market.

The early rise was nothing more than a technical bounce, Wall Street analysts said. The news was just as drab as it has been recently. Today it was emphasized by the report of a decline in personal income for the third straight month.

Short covering was credited for much of the early strength as the decline in the short interest, announced after the close, was anticipated by market insiders.

The drop in the short interest was regarded as bearish news because it thinned the cushion of potential buyers by those who look for declining prices on which to pay back borrowed stock.

March Lint Only Gainer

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Cotton futures drifted downward today after early steadiness, closing 15 cents a bale higher to 70 cents lower. Only near March showed a gain, with support coming through trade covering.

Some buying of March against sales of May also developed in current crop months. This was regarded as a transfer of hedge positions forward by dealers.

During the morning the market held slightly higher. It weakened in the face of increased selling by New Orleans and local traders. Traders generally awaited results of the latest sales of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton for unrestricted use.

The bidding:

North East South West
 Pass 1 heart 3 clubs Pass
 Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ten of hearts.

When a hand appears on the surface ironclad, that is the time to look around for possible accidents and to guard against their occurrence. This is the creed of the safety play and failure to observe this creed cost South half of the potential swing that developed from his preemptive bid.

The immediate five club overcall neatly blocked East and West from finding their spade fit. Game at spades was a laydown, and, in the absence of a diamond lead, five could have been made.

Against South's five-club contract, the 10 of hearts was opened and declarer took it with the ace. He forthwith led a trump which East took with the ace, and a heart return was ruffed by West. The ace of diamonds was the setting trick. Declarer said he didn't play East for a six-card heart suit.

"The only thing that could cause the defeat of the contract was a ruff. Now a six-card suit in the hand of a person who has made a bid can hardly be termed a fantastic holding. So declarer should have protected himself against this possibility by winning the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts, cashing the ace of spades, upon which the ace of hearts should be shed.

In addition to being good business, it is also good drama. There is nothing quite so disturbing to enemy morale as the discarding of an ace. Now when East is in with the ace of trumps he may return a heart, but declarer can ruff high enough to insure winning the trick and then only the ace of diamonds need be lost.

A Rhyme a Day

"Please, please write about children who go away and do not write to their lonely parents back home."—Signed, "Daily Reader"

If you have to write a letter . . . though you haven't much to say . . . you will feel a whole lot better . . . when you get it on the way . . . though it's just a short and snappy . . . note that says, "there's nothing new" . . . it will make somebody happy . . . who expects a word from you.

Why on earth are you delaying . . . what you should have done before??? I can almost hear you saying . . . "Letter writing is a bore" . . . but I'll bet you feel neglected . . . when the postman's whistle shrills . . . and the letter you expected . . . isn't found among the bills.

Whether you're in Yokohama . . . Hackensack or Buffalo . . . just remember that your mama . . . can be awful blue and low . . . but a note will make her happy . . . and I do not have a doubt . . . that tonight, she'll tell your pappy . . . all the things you wrote about.

"Still achieving, still pursuing" . . . as Longfellow used to say . . . if you have some "billet-douxing" . . . "billet-doux" . . . the thing today.

(*Dear "Daily Reader": How the heck can I write YOU? You didn't sign your name nor give an address?)

Russian Women To Visit India

LONDON, Dec. 18 (UP)—A delegation of Russian women has left for a two-week visit to India at the invitation of the Indian government, Moscow Radio reported yesterday.

The group, led by Tatiana Izuyeva, minister of culture in the Russian federation, is made up of teachers and scientific workers from many Soviet republics, the broadcast said.
